This day, in accordance with the Constitution of the State of North Carolina and G.S. 120-11.1, which fixes the date for the meeting of the General Assembly of North Carolina, the members of the House of Representatives assemble in the House Chamber of the State Legislative Building in the City of Raleigh at 12:00 Noon and are called to order by the Honorable Denise G. Weeks, House Principal Clerk.

The following prayer is offered by the Honorable William Wainwright.

"Our God and our Father, we pause to give Thee thanks for the privilege of service and for the opportunity to be a part of the opening session of the North Carolina House of Representatives. As we gather for this auspicious occasion, we ask that the Creator of the Universe will allow His spirit to settle among us. We implore the Giver of all Good Things to strengthen us individually, and collectively, to provide us with clarity of purpose so that we may enact legislation which is in the best interests of our constituents, and to ensure that those who offer advice provide all of the facts.

"We ask that each participant in the legislative process be endowed with an extra measure of wisdom, patience, and humility. Grant that we may be given the insight to discern the big picture and the understanding to work on the parts of the picture to form a perfect replica.

"Help us to approach each day as if the future of our State depended solely on each of us. Grant that we may utilize our strengths responsibly and strengthen our weaknesses systematically. Ours is an awesome responsibility. Let us remember that our decisions impact more than six million lives on a daily basis."
"Strengthen us that we may not violate the trust that those who voted for us placed in us.

"We thank Thee for this day, its blessings and beauty.

"For we ask it in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost. Amen."

The Honorable Steve Wood leads the Body in the Pledge of Allegiance.

I do by these presents appoint
JOE P. TOLSON
as a member of the
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
1997 General Assembly

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto signed my name and affixed the Great Seal of the State at the Capitol in the City of Raleigh, this 27th day of January in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred Ninety-Seven.

S/ James B. Hunt, Jr.
Governor

S/ Elaine F. Marshall
Secretary of State
By: Rodney S. Maddox
Chief Deputy Secretary of State
The one hundred twenty Members-elect and appointed who are present, take and subscribe to the following oath of office, which is administered by Chief Justice Burley B. Mitchell, Jr., Supreme Court of North Carolina.

OATH FOR MEMBERS OF THE 1997 HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

"I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States; so help me God; and

"I do solemnly and sincerely swear (or affirm) that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the State of North Carolina, and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain and defend the Constitution and laws of said State, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; and

"I do swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of a Member of the 1997 House of Representatives according to the best of my skill and ability, according to law; so help me God."

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

The Principal Clerk announces that the first order of business is the election of a Speaker and explains the voting procedure to be used in the absence of adopted rules.

The Chair declares that nominations are in order.

SPEAKER

The Chair recognizes Representative Esposito, who places in nomination the name of Representative Harold James Brubaker as the Republican nominee for the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

"Madam Clerk, distinguished guests, colleagues, and friends. It is, indeed, an honor to rise on this auspicious and historic beginning day of the 142nd Session of the North Carolina General Assembly to nominate the distinguished gentleman, the Honorable Harold Brubaker from the County of Randolph, for Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives."
"He has the energy and enthusiasm of youth, and the wisdom and patience of a seasoned legislator. Harold Brubaker is sensitive to maintaining the balance between the power of this august body and the needs of the people.

"He is a man of gentle persuasion, who represents his convictions with strength and style; his quiet undergirding of the truth has been a hallmark. He has the qualities to respond effectively to the many challenges of the Office of Speaker.

"Harold Brubaker is a man of vision and foresight, ready to lead our state as we prepare to enter the 21st century. His finely honed leadership skills were the key ingredient in ensuring the success of the historic reforms passed by this Legislature over the past two years.

"It was Harold Brubaker who led the fight to reduce the tax burden on North Carolina’s citizens. Under his leadership, the Legislature passed the largest tax relief package in state history.

"This means more money in the pockets of the working women and men of our state. It also means new, high-paying jobs for our citizens. It is the pro-business politics and policies adopted under Harold Brubaker’s leadership that are largely responsible for North Carolina’s current ranking as the number one business environment in the nation.

"But tax relief was only a part of the story.

"It was Harold Brubaker who stood his ground and demanded state government spending be controlled. His fiscally-conservative philosophy will continue to protect future generations from the burdens of excessive spending by the government.

"It was Harold Brubaker who took a tough stand against crime. Now, criminals stay behind bars - where they belong.

"It was Harold Brubaker who championed real reforms in education. The people of this state demanded better performance from their public schools and he delivered. Now, we have more local control, less bureaucracy and more accountability.

"Under Harold Brubaker’s leadership, the General Assembly made giant strides in reforming state government. But there is much more to be done. In many areas, such as education, the status quo is simply unacceptable.

"Harold Brubaker has already proven that he has the will power to tackle these seemingly intractable problems and find common sense solutions that will truly improve the quality of life in North Carolina.

"It is fitting that Harold Brubaker should assume this position of leadership in a state whose motto is: Esse Quam Videri...To be rather than to seem. He forthrightly and honestly establishes relationships without pretense or guile.

"He is a caring, compassionate man who can see past those with mere wants, to truly help those with real needs. His sympathy for the less fortunate is sterling evidence of his conspicuous credentials.

"You know where you stand with Harold Brubaker, and you know his position. I look forward to his integrity and deliberation of purpose continuing to imprint his mark of leadership on this Legislature.

"I respect this gentleman.

"Harold Brubaker was that senior statesman who reached out to me as a freshman in this Body some 13 years ago. For me, it was incredible good fortune. As my mentor, he taught me about leadership and statesmanship.

"Representative Brubaker, I am indebted to you.

"As President Woodrow Wilson once said, 'A man is not as big as his belief in himself, he is as big as the number of persons who believe in him'.

"Representative Brubaker, you are indeed a great leader - for, along with many others from across this great state, I have the deepest and most sincere belief in your leadership.

"Fellow legislators, I am truly honored to commend to you, in nomination as Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives, my friend, my former seatmate, the Honorable Harold James Brubaker."

The nomination is seconded by Representative Brown.

"Madam Chair, Ladies and gentlemen, my fellow colleagues, families, and distinguished guests.
"It is my sincere privilege and honor to second the nomination of Harold James Brubaker to serve as Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives during the 1997 Legislative Session.

"Though I have known and served with Representative Brubaker longer than most of you, over the last two years I believe that we all have gained a greater appreciation for the leadership skills that Speaker Brubaker has cultivated over the years.

"Because of his ability to lead, maintain focus, build consensus, and do the people's work - each member reaped the rewards of being part of the most active and historic legislative session in our state's history.

"Let me remind you of just a few of our most important accomplishments:

- We passed the largest tax cut in the history of North Carolina.
- We passed the landmark Taxpayer Protection Act that limited the growth of state government spending.
- We passed the boldest welfare reform in the nation.
- At the same time, we passed the largest environmental package in state history.
- We reduced the size and cost of state government.
- We exercised fiscal restraint and we left $125 million in reserve for emergencies.
- And while enacting all of these conservative measures, we did not touch the Highway Fund.

"To sum up our actions, it was fiscal responsibility at its best!

"But, these historic changes didn't just happen...

"As Speaker, Harold Brubaker kept this Body focused on fiscal responsibility and promises made to North Carolina's citizens and taxpayers.

"Promises made, were in fact, promises kept.

"As Speaker, Harold Brubaker listened, he planned, and yes, he successfully led by promoting an atmosphere that accepted diversity, but at the same time created unity.
"Most importantly though, Harold Brubaker maintained integrity and the highest ethical standards not only while serving as Speaker, but throughout his public and private life.

"As the book of Proverbs reminds us: 'The integrity of the upright shall guide them'.

"Today is no different than those biblical times. Men such as Harold Brubaker can be trusted to guide us in the direction that we need to go. I respectfully ask that each of you join me in re-electing Harold J. Brubaker as Speaker of the North Carolina House. Thank you."

The nomination is seconded by Representative Nichols.

"Madam Clerk, Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen, and Colleagues, I also rise to second the nomination of Harold Brubaker for Speaker of the North Carolina House.

"Two years ago today, every major newspaper in the state and most TV stations in the state had accepted the fact that Republicans would control the State House. Their question was whether or not our party could govern, in light of the fact that we hadn't elected a Republican Speaker in more than 100 years. And, they said, look at our team - we had a Pro Tem nominee who gave fiery speeches as a minority member and represented the party, as well as a Majority Leader from across the hall, who called us all 'Senator' during his first term in this chamber, and we had a quiet man from Randolph County, who had maintained a calm presence on the back row, seldom challenging the authority of the majority party as our Speaker nominee.

"Did we govern successfully? Yes, we did. We passed the largest tax decrease in North Carolina's history. We began a much overdue downsizing of state government. We spent less than in previous sessions of the Legislature. We passed the largest environmental package in the history of North Carolina. We began to put accountability in public schools, and we passed massive school and highway bonds.

"These gains were not made by one party alone, but with the support of both sides of the aisle. Harold Brubaker forged that partnership by his willingness to hear all sides in debates and involve all parties in order to address our 'Contract with North Carolina'.
"I believe that Speaker Brubaker has done an excellent job in his first term, and deserves another term in order to continue the tasks that loom before us. Our first term, obviously, was not without its ups and downs, but 'Bru' rose to the occasion. And, I hope that you will join me in supporting Speaker Brubaker for re-election as Speaker of the North Carolina House. Thank you very much."

The Chair recognizes Representative Easterling, who places in nomination the name of James B. Black as the Democratic nominee for the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

"Ladies and Gentlemen, Young People and Children.

"I address you today as former Representative Anne Barnes did several years ago when she nominated Representative Dan Blue to a second term as Speaker of the House.

"All of us - male and female - young and old - Democrats - Republicans - Independents (which probably describes us all at times) - fall into these categories.

"We all are citizens of this wonderful State of North Carolina. We all love it and its people - its grandeur of mountains and plains - rivers and ocean.

"We all want the best for our own district - our own county - the whole state.

"The trouble is we can’t always agree on what the best is or how to achieve it. But that is democracy.

"I stand at this place - at this podium - to nominate Representative Jim Black for Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives.

"Now more than ever - this House needs a Speaker who will be truly bi-partisan - a Speaker who will listen to all - be fair to all - rule with a steady gavel - and maintain civility and decorum within the ranks - even when we disagree with each other.

"Representative Black is such a man! He has had experience doing just that."
"I nominate Representative Black because his experience as Majority Whip and as Minority Leader of the Democrats eminently qualifies him to lead a bi-partisan group of individual personalities and strong egos!

"Nobody is more independent than a Democrat! Nobody is more set in his or her ways than a Democrat - nobody loves the State more than a Democrat - in all of our diverse ways.

"Representative Black has courage - integrity - a deep sense of fairness - he keeps his word - you can depend on him - he will not lie to you!

"Now, more than ever, this House needs a person who will appoint both Republicans and Democrats to places of leadership - to co-chair committees - subcommittees - study committees.

"Now, more than ever, this House needs someone who is a peacemaker (with experience) among Democrats.

"Someone who is not vindictive - who does not hold a grudge. Representative Black is all of this and more.

"Representative Black is a professional man. He is used to leading - to making decisions. Representative Black is a family man - he knows the value of stability and nurturing for children and grandchildren. Representative Black is an experienced legislator. He knows how to get things done.

"Now, more than ever, this House needs a leader for these times. It gives me great personal pleasure and I am proud to nominate my fellow Mecklenburger - Representative Jim Black for Speaker of the North Carolina House for the 1997-98 term."

The nomination is seconded by Representative Wright.

"Madam Clerk, Members of the House. I stand before you today to second the nomination of Representative James Black for Speaker of the House of Representatives.

"In whom do I put my trust? In God.

"God has bestowed upon us the gift of serving in this Body and by having this gift we should have the opportunity to serve without exclusion from the process. That is the responsibility of the leader of this House to insure that every member elected to serve here has that opportunity. The leader of this House needs to be fair and inclusive of all its members. I proudly second the nomination of Representative James B. Black. Thank you."

There being no further nominations, the Principal Clerk declares the nominations closed and requests that the roll of the House be called.

The following members vote for Representative Brubaker: Representatives Aldridge, Allred, Arnold, Baker, Barbee, Berry, Bowie, Brawley, Brown, Brubaker, Buchanan, Cansler, Capps, Carpenter, Church, Clary, Crawford, Creech, Culp, Daughtry, Davis, Decker, Dickson, Dockham, Eddins, Ellis, Esposito, Gardner, Grady, Gray, Gulley, Hall, Hardy, Hiatt, Hill, Holmes, Howard, Ives, Justus, Kiser, McComas, McCombs, McMahan, Miner, Mitchell, Morgan, Morris, Neely, Nichols, Preston, Rayfield, Reynolds, Russell, Sexton, Sherrill, Shubert, Starnes, Tallent, Thompson, Watson, Weatherly, C. Wilson, G. Wilson, and Wood - 64.

Representative Brubaker, having received a majority vote, is declared Speaker of the 1997 House of Representatives.

The Speaker, escorted to the Chair by Representatives Thompson, Hill, Mitchell, Kiser, Culp, Clary, Morris, Davis, Wainwright, and Preston, takes and subscribes to the following oath of office administered by Associate Justice I. Beverly Lake, Jr., of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

OATH FOR SPEAKER OF THE 1997 HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

"I, HAROLD J. BRUBAKER, do solemnly swear that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States; so help me God; and
"I do solemnly and sincerely swear that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the State of North Carolina, and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain and defend the Constitution and laws of said State, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; and

"I do swear that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of Speaker of the 1997 House of Representatives according to the best of my skill and ability, according to law; so help me God."

The Speaker, Mr. Brubaker, approaches the dais and makes the following remarks.

"Two years ago most of us were in this same setting as this House underwent some changes.

"Over the last two years we have experienced our share of partisan battles, yet more often than not they have ended in bipartisan solutions.

"In the end, each one of us left our fingerprints on a session of historic accomplishments.

"We passed the largest tax relief package in state history.

"We successfully controlled runaway state government spending.

"We took a tough stance on crime in order to take criminals off our streets.

"And we began the process of reforming and improving our public schools.

"These were indeed important achievements. But they are not the end of the story - instead they are only the beginning.

"We can not stand back and admire our achievements. We must continue to build on them if we are to be prepared for the future.

"Our ability to build on these accomplishments is now greater than ever. And, one of the most important achievements of last session was the development of a bipartisan consensus in support of many of the reforms that were proposed. Our common sense ideas to reform state government have helped create a consensus on both sides of the aisle, in both chambers, and in the Governor's Mansion. We need to capitalize on this consensus and work together if we are to achieve substantial, long-lasting improvements for North Carolina.

"And let me say this - our accomplishments were not the work of only one party. Our accomplishments received support from members on both sides of the aisle. Continuing this bipartisan cooperation is essential, if we hope to solve the many problems facing our state.

"And there are indeed many challenges to face.

"Our state's educational system is faltering. Our students are not performing and our teachers are fleeing the classroom. We remain stuck at the bottom of the nation in SAT scores. Continuing the status quo is simply not acceptable - something must be done.

"There are many initiatives being proposed to rectify this situation, but in debating the merits of each proposal I hope we will follow a few principles. First, continuing to demand accountability in education is important. Secondly, teacher compensation should be based on performance and knowledge, not simply longevity. And finally, it will serve the state well if we never fail to remember that student achievement is our ultimate goal. If we keep these principles in mind, we will succeed.

"We will continue to ensure state government provides essential services to our citizens. Yet in doing so, we need to insist that these services be provided in the most efficient way possible. There are a number of initiatives being proposed to achieve this goal - such as zero-based-budgeting, privatization, and patronage reform. All of these proposals deserve serious consideration.

"Though, education and governmental reform are two of our most serious challenges, they are not the only ones we face. We should prepare ourselves to deal with many complicated issues this session. Campaign reform, congressional redistricting, protecting the environment, and welfare reform are just a few of the many important public policy questions we will be confronted with this session.

"Constructing workable solutions to these challenges is indeed a daunting task. We have many long hours of work ahead of us. But, I know that each of you will accept these challenges and pour all of your heart and soul into this great endeavor we call the legislative process.
"For, as a state legislator, you represent the cornerstone on which our nation was founded.

"As Congress begins and continues the process of returning control to the states, it is essential to realize the significant power you hold as a North Carolina state legislator.

"Let me offer what may be a surprising proposition to some of you...

States, not the federal government, hold the highest level of authority in this nation.

"It was your predecessors in this General Assembly, along with their colleagues in twelve other states, who originally founded this great nation of ours.

"It is through the power granted by these state legislatures that the President, Congress, and the Supreme Court receive their authority. You, as state legislators, have the ability to modify or even take away these powers.

"At the state level the power of this Body is even more apparent.

"The Governor derives his power from the state constitution and laws that you pass. The Governor may choose to veto legislation, but cannot independently enact legislation...only you, as state legislators, can independently enact legislation and over-ride the Governor's veto.

"As a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, you are pivotal to public policy at the federal, state, and local levels. This is indeed a great responsibility.

"I challenge each of you to work diligently, in a bipartisan manner, to find the solutions to the problems facing our State and to bear the burden of your responsibilities as a Member of this House with dignity and pride.

"As we prepare to confront the challenges that await us, let us pause to truly appreciate our responsibilities here in Raleigh.

"The future of our children and grandchildren depend upon the efforts of individual legislators, such as yourself, who are willing to confront difficult situations and take principled stands.
"On this great day, I want to thank my colleagues for electing me to serve as Speaker of the House. You have given me a tremendous responsibility.

"I would like to close with a prayer by Father Pangrazzi which holds meaning for each of us as we enter this session.

'O Lord, give me enough tears to keep me human, enough humor to keep me wise, enough setbacks to keep me humble, enough accomplishments to keep me confident, enough patience to teach me waiting, enough hope to teach me trusting, enough friends to give me love, enough memories to give me comfort, and enough faith to keep me going. Amen.'

"Thank you."

The Speaker assumes the duties of the Chair.

SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker states that nominations are in order for Speaker Pro Tempore.

The Chair recognizes Representative Daughtry who places in nomination the name of Representative C. Robert Brawley as a nominee for Speaker Pro Tempore.

"It is my pleasure to stand here today to nominate for Speaker Pro Tem, Representative C. Robert Brawley. During his sixteen years in the House, he has demonstrated his ability to work with both parties. He has served as Vice Chair of Revenue Laws, Insurance, and Pensions in Democratic administrations and has served as Joint Caucus Leader under the Republican Speaker.

"He has been active with the National Conference of State Legislatures, serving as the immediate past chair of the very important Commerce and Communications Committee, working to develop a solution to the telecommunications deregulations and he currently serves on the Executive Board of Directors for the National Conference of State Legislatures. The National Conference of State Legislatures is a national organization to promote states' rights and issues which concern all state legislators.

"Robert has also distinguished himself by currently serving as the President of the National Republican Legislators Association. The position of Speaker Pro Tem came about in 1973 to assure there would be someone in position to serve in the absence of the Speaker. Robert's strong administrative background assures he will do a good job. I gladly nominate Robert Brawley for the position of Speaker Pro Tem."

Representative Howard seconds the nomination.

"Mr. Speaker, I arise to second the nomination of Representative C. Robert Brawley for Speaker Pro Tem. Living in his area and having spoken with his constituents, I know he listens. He listens to what his constituents have to say and to what the people from the surrounding communities have on their minds.

"We have some tremendous challenges ahead of us as does each session of the General Assembly. The things we do affect all of the citizens of North Carolina.

"Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I stand to second the nomination of Robert Brawley for Speaker Pro Tem."

The Chair recognizes Representative Mitchell who places in nomination the name of Representative Carolyn Russell as a nominee for Speaker Pro Tempore.

"Mr. Speaker, Members of the House, family members, distinguished visitors and guests of the House, I come before you today to place in nomination for Speaker Pro Tempore of the North Carolina House of Representatives, a great leader and dedicated public servant, Representative Carolyn Russell.
"As Speaker Pro Tem, Carolyn Russell was at the forefront of the historic reforms passed by this Body over the last two years.

"Carolyn Russell led the fight to control runaway government spending. She sponsored the Taxpayers Protection Act which passed this Body with an overwhelming majority.

"Carolyn Russell led the fight to pass the largest tax relief package in North Carolina history. She knows that high taxes burden our families and slow our economy. Her efforts to cut the food tax and the personal income tax will help mothers and fathers spend more time with their children and less time working to pay the government.

"Her efforts to cut the corporate income tax have already paid off. Recently, three different surveys have named North Carolina's business environment the best in the country. And it also means more families can move from government dependence to self-reliance.

"Many of you know that the driving force behind Carolyn Russell's dedication to public service is her desire to strengthen North Carolina's families. She believes that the family is the most important foundation in making both our state and our nation strong and she is committed to protecting it.

"She has worked diligently to ensure policies established by this Body adhere to this fundamental truth.

"Carolyn and her husband, Douglas, dreamed the American Dream for their three children - Susannah, Douglas, and Meredith. And she is committed to making the American Dream work for every family. This means ensuring they have the freedom to pursue their dreams and can enjoy the fruits of their labor. It also means ensuring that each child in North Carolina receives the very best education the state can provide.

"As you know, Carolyn Russell is truly consumed by her desire to improve education in North Carolina. Carolyn is a strong, dedicated advocate for children. Her determination to improve our schools was clearly evident over the last two years. Carolyn Russell was at the forefront of House efforts to improve public education in North Carolina. Carolyn was a driving force behind our efforts to increase local control, create charter schools, reduce the state education bureaucracy, and increase accountability in schools. You can be assured she will not slow her efforts to reform our educational system. She knows that continuing to rank 48th in the nation in education is simply unacceptable. We must make real reforms if we are going to truly improve our public schools. Carolyn Russell is the leader we need to lead these efforts.

"Whether it has been her work with mental health, women's issues or early childhood development, Carolyn Russell has dedicated her life to help the citizens of North Carolina have a strong voice in government.

"She is a caring, compassionate woman who sees the best in everyone. But we all know that she can be tough when necessary. This is a unique combination that works for very few people, however, Carolyn is able to carry it off with the grace and charm she is known for.

"Harmony being the strength of successful organizations, Carolyn combines her great compassion, keen intellect and strong leadership skills to guide the members of the House as we work harmoniously for all of the citizens of North Carolina.

"For those of us who have admired her work ethic, benefited from her counsel, and been inspired by her dedicated public service, I now place the name, Carolyn Barnes Russell, in nomination for Speaker Pro Tem of the North Carolina House of Representatives."

Representative Berry seconds the nomination.

"Mr. Speaker, distinguished guests, friends and colleagues.....

"Two years ago, I had the honor of nominating for Speaker Pro Tempore an outstanding member of this Body - Representative Carolyn Barnes Russell.

"I have watched with you as she fulfilled the duties of her office with grace, dignity and a high degree of intelligence.

"She is an exceptional role model for our young people all over the state, who are waiting in the wings to assume their positions in our society and our government.

"Carolyn Russell was elected two years ago by a clear majority of the members of this Body and rightfully assumed the office of Speaker Pro Tempore..."
"Because, Ladies and Gentlemen, in our representative form of government - the majority rules.

"The majority rule is the keystone of our democracy and the underlying principle embraced by all of us regardless of our political affiliations.

"Every individual vote cast in our own elections to office, in our committees, in our caucus, and in this chamber is based on majority rule.

"Following the 1996 elections, our caucus met and Carolyn Russell was once again selected as our nominee for Speaker Pro Tempore by the majority vote.

"(No vote has been taken by our caucus to change that majority decision.)

"At no time have we ever - nor should we ever grant to any member of this esteemed Body the power to override the majority rule.

"For when we abdicate the majority rule - chaos reigns supreme!

"So therefore, Mr. Speaker...with great pride and purpose...I reaffirm our caucus majority decision and second the nomination of Carolyn Barnes Russell for the office of Speaker Pro Tempore because, Ladies and Gentlemen, it is the right thing to do."

Representative Neely seconds the nomination.

"Mr. Speaker and Members of the Body, my remarks will be brief. I think the two prior speakers have said it as well as I, or better, what it is I wish to say. But, because of the regard in which I hold Carolyn Russell, I wanted to add my own comments to this.

"This is a lady of extraordinary confidence that you've heard about - of character, integrity, honor, constancy, and ability. She deserves to continue to serve in the same capacity which she ably served in the last session.

"She brings to this Body prestige by her service in that capacity and I hope that we will re-elect her by an overwhelming vote to a position which she discharged ably. I do not believe in preferences, but I do believe that the women of this state also deserve representation at the highest levels and Carolyn Russell brings that additional benefit to us and on those grounds also I ask you to join in supporting her."
The Chair recognizes Representative Wood who places in nomination his own name as a nominee for Speaker Pro Tempore.

"Mr. Speaker, Ladies and Gentlemen of the House, family and friends, and citizens from across our great state and all those other government watchers out there; I know the hour is late and I'll keep this simple.

"My name is Steve Wood.

"Today, I begin serving my 6th term as a Representative of the people of House District 27.

"On behalf of my constituents and the membership of this big house, I am seeking your vote for Speaker Pro Tem.

"Many of you on both sides of the aisle have expressed the desire for a different Pro Tem leadership this term and my candidacy clearly provides you with this opportunity.

"I ask you to vote "Wood" on this next roll call and any subsequent roll calls, if required, and in sermonesque now that I have been nervously nominated, I will run. And if elected, I will serve to the best of my ability."

There being no further nominations, the Speaker declares the nominations closed and requests that the roll of the House be called.

The following members vote for Representative Brawley: Speaker Brubaker; Representatives Brawley, Buchanan, Daughtry, Ellis, Grady, Hiatt, Morris, Nichols, and Rayfield - 10.

The following members vote for Representative Wood: Representatives Adams, Alexander, Beall, Black, Blue, Bonner, Boyd-McIntyre, Church, Cole, Crawford, Culpepper, Cunningham, Decker, Dedmon, Earle, Easterling, Eddins, Fitch, Fox, Gamble, Goodwin, Hackney, Hardaway, Representative Braswell requests that his vote be changed from Russell to Wood. The adjusted vote total is Representative Wood - 61, Representative Russell - 49 and Representative Brawley - 10.

Representative Wood, having received a majority vote, is declared Speaker Pro Tempore.

The Speaker Pro Tempore, escorted to the Well of the House by Representatives Decker, Goodwin, Black, and Adams, take and subscribes to the following oath of office administered by Associate Justice Robert F. Orr of the North Carolina Supreme Court.

OATH FOR SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE OF THE 1997 HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

"I, Stephen W. Wood, do solemnly affirm, that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States; so help me God; and

"I do solemnly and sincerely affirm that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to the State of North Carolina, and to the constitutional powers and authorities which are or may be established for the government thereof; and that I will endeavor to support, maintain and defend the Constitution and laws of said State, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States, to the best of my knowledge and ability; and

"I do affirm that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of Speaker Pro Tempore of the 1997 House of Representatives according to the best of my skill and ability, according to law; so help me God."

Speaker Pro Tempore Wood makes the following remarks.

"Thank you Mr. Speaker and Ladies and Gentlemen of the House. I'm most grateful for your vote of confidence today."
"I'm still so nervous I can't hardly say anything - not just out of being scared or out of fear - but out of appreciation and thankfulness and gratitude for the vote that you have given me today here on the first ballot.

"I didn't come with a speech in hand, so I reserve the right, Mr. Speaker, to prepare perhaps a speech and give that on another occasion. But I do want to say that it was a childhood dream of mine - growing up as the youngest of ten children in western Forsyth County - to come to the General Assembly. It was when I made that pilgrimage down here with the classes, as you know, Representative Black, as they do down here, teachers bring them down - they were still meeting in the old Chamber over there. That's when I made my first visit here and a dream was planted on that day that it might be possible for Steve Wood, Annie and Doc Woods' son, to make it to the North Carolina House and on this day to be elected Speaker Pro Tem.

"Contrary to what the High Point Enterprise and others say in the press - I did move to Guilford County. I am a resident of Guilford County now and I am so grateful for the voters and the citizens of House District 27 which have given me this opportunity to be here and to achieve this great honor on their behalf, as well, today.

"Thank you and God bless this great House and God bless this great state of North Carolina."

STATE OF THE STATE ADDRESS

A Challenge to North Carolina: A New Commitment to Education

"Mr. President, Mr. Speaker, Mr. President Pro Tem, members of the General Assembly, distinguished guests, my fellow North Carolinians.....

"We meet today with a common purpose and a common resolve -- to put education first.

"This commitment is far more important than party or politics. It is a commitment that will determine our future.

"Our challenge is to act on that commitment in this session -- starting today.

"Nothing else we do will be as important. Nothing.

"So I come here today to ask you to dedicate this legislative session to the cause of public education. I stand ready to work with you to make this the most important education session in North Carolina's history. Let's join in that commitment today.

"Let me say first of all, that I have no patience with those who say that our schools are broken and cannot be fixed.

"They are wrong.

"Even some in this chamber today, may not believe that North Carolina can have truly excellent schools.

"They are wrong."
"Let me be clear on why the public schools exist. They do not exist for public officials. They do not exist for ideologues. They do not exist for parents or teachers or principals.

"They exist for our children. To educate them and prepare them for a changing and competitive world.

"And the schools are doing a better job than their critics admit. Last month, a national report ranked North Carolina's schools among the top twelve in the nation. It gave us high marks for setting academic standards, assessing student performance and providing equitable resources.

"In short, North Carolina's schools are not 48th. Let's give our schools the credit they deserve!

"But that report did offer a valid criticism. Too often, our zeal and our good intentions have led us in too many different directions. Adopting too many reforms that confuse teachers and complicate the job of educating children.

"This year, let's get focused. Let's concentrate on two things that are the most important in our children's education. And let's stick with these two things, until the job is done.

"Here are the two things that I challenge North Carolinians to do over the next four years:

"Number 1, put Smart Start fully in place in all one hundred counties in our state.

"Number 2, raise education standards and raise teacher pay to at least the national average.

"Do these two things. Stick with them for four years. Make this commitment to our children's future and you'll see schools and our children compete with anybody, anywhere.

"Seated in the Gallery today with Mrs. Hunt and Dr. Jay Robinson are some of North Carolina's teachers. Next to being a parent, they have the most important job in North Carolina. I would like to ask those teachers to stand up and ask you to join me in paying tribute to them and to our teachers in the state.
"Teachers have difficult and demanding jobs and you recognize that in your applause. They work long hours every day. They grade papers at night. They stay late for parent conferences. And, they worry endlessly about our children.

"But do you know what the state pays a beginning public school teacher today? Just $21,330 a year. And the top salary -- for the most experienced and most qualified teacher, who has taught for thirty years -- is less than $43,000. That is wrong!

"Is it any wonder that 30 percent of our teachers leave in the first three years?

"Just last week, I got a letter from concerned parents at Root Elementary School here in Raleigh signed by a whole two pages of parents. One of their favorite teachers, Kathleen Hagerty, has left to take a job at almost double her current salary. She left because she didn't earn enough to pay her living expenses and pay back the money she borrowed to get a masters' degree.

"Those parents wrote me this letter. They said, 'we are all extremely disappointed. Her leaving is a great loss to our school.'

"Folks, North Carolina's teachers deserve better. First of all, they deserve greater respect. They deserve greater support from parents, students and all of us. And they deserve better pay.

"So I am proposing that by the year 2000, we raise the starting salary for teachers to $25,000 dollars a year. And I am proposing that we raise the pay for our best and most experienced teachers to at least $53,000 a year.

"If we do this, we will attract the best teachers, we will keep them in our classrooms, and we will take a giant step toward giving our children the education they deserve. Let's make this commitment and take this step forward this year.

"Now, let me be clear about this -- I am not talking about simply raising pay across the board without regard to experience and qualifications.

"First and foremost, I am talking about paying better teachers for better performance. Paying a bonus of up to $1,000 when their students learn more under the ABC plan. A 12 percent bonus for earning national-board certification. A 10 percent bonus for earning a masters' degree.

"I am talking about raising academic standards, holding students and schools accountable for their progress, and making sure that students learn the basics and the skills that they will need to get a good job.

"I am talking about paying teachers more for extra work, like starting the school year early, mentoring new teachers, helping students who are behind.

"I am talking about increasing starting salaries by nearly 20 percent so that we can attract more bright young people into the profession.

"I am talking about making sure these new teachers are better trained and get a full year of experience in the classroom before they even start teaching.

"I am talking about extra pay raises in years when they pass tougher evaluations and meet higher standards -- such as when they first earn their license, earn their continuing license and earn tenure.

"I am talking about making it harder to earn tenure and easier to get bad teachers out of the classroom. Some people say that bad teachers shouldn't get a pay raise. I agree. They should get a pink slip.

"What I am talking about is a pay raise for all teachers and higher pay raises for teachers who meet higher standards. It's the least we can do for the most important and hardest working people in our state.

"Now, some people say we can't afford this step forward. But the cost of reaching the national average is just 2 percent of the total state budget over the next four years. Just 2 percent.

"Surely we can afford that.

"Surely we can afford to pay our teachers a decent wage. A wage that shows we value all they do. That helps us attract and keep the best and the brightest in our classrooms.

"Surely we should require that every school and every school system be run in a way that best serves its students, parents, teachers, and taxpayers. That means we should send in special audit teams to review the performance of schools and school systems and help bring about changes when they are needed.

"Legislation to accomplish this goal will be introduced shortly in both the House and the Senate. It will put into action our plan for excellent teaching -- as well as higher standards, workforce training and technology. It will be called the Excellent Schools Act.

"I urge you to pass it this year.

"I urge you to pass it, so we can recruit and retain the very best teachers for our children.

"I urge you to pass it and enable our public schools to take this big step forward in these four years.

"Higher standards and better teachers, that's number one. Let's talk now about the other big step that we need to take.

"It's really the first step in the life of a child.

"It's one where North Carolina is already leading the nation. It's one that can have the greatest impact on our children and their future. It's Smart Start.

"We're not just talking about budgets and programs here. We are literally talking about children's brains, and how quickly they develop and grow.

"Time magazine last month devoted nearly an entire issue to this subject. Last week the nation's governors in their meeting in Washington devoted much of their conference to this very subject. Democratic and Republican alike, governors across this country are focusing on it.

"This is coming from new scientific research and discoveries.

"Scientists have found that the brain grows faster and develops more fully when a child is held and talked to and hugged and loved. They have found that eighty-five percent of the brain develops in the first three years. Eighty-five percent.
"That's why children with good parents get a good start. That's why good day care is so important. That's why children who are neglected and abused are hurt for life.

"Now some of you have heard me talk about little children's brains for four years now. You may be getting tired of it. But now I've got science on my side.

"My wife up there in the gallery has known it for a long time, and she just wants to know why it's taken me forty years, four children and six grandchildren to figure it out.

"Now we can't guarantee every child a good family. And we can't set up a new public school system for children under 5.

"What we can do in state government is be a catalyst for children.

"What we can do is get state and local governments working together. Churches and businesses and community groups and health care providers all working together to meet the needs of children. To meet the needs of children -- in your community and mine.

"What we can do is put more public and private resources into those critical early years. And that's what Smart Start does.

"In Mecklenburg County, Smart Start has helped child care centers double the number of children they serve.

"In Lenoir County, the partnership is helping children who are not ready yet for kindergarten. Teaching them basic language and thinking and physical skills. Helping them catch up and enter school ready to learn.

"In Stanly County, they are doing something very interesting. Smart Start is helping parents become their child's first teacher by providing a little extra money to help one parent stay at home during their child's first year.

"This is the kind of thing Smart Start is doing today in 43 counties. And this is why we need it fully in place in all one hundred counties by the year 2000. I ask you to make that commitment this year so our children will get the good start that every child in North Carolina deserves."
"Now, certainly we have many other responsibilities to meet in this session.

"We have a responsibility to see that our schools and our communities are safe from crime, from drugs and violence. We must continue to crack down on school discipline. We must devise a more effective way of dealing with juvenile crime. We must continue to lock up dangerous criminals and require them to work hard in prison. And we should act on the recommendations of John Medlin's Commission on the Future of the Courts -- to make sure that our courts are up to the challenge of the 21st Century.

"We have a responsibility to keep our universities and our community colleges among the very best in the nation, with competitive faculties and facilities.

"We have a responsibility to keep North Carolina ahead of the nation in attracting new jobs and new businesses. In the last session you passed tax cuts and incentives that are working. Now we need to train workers for new and expanding businesses. And we should expand JobReady, our school-to-work initiative, statewide.

"We must demand personal and parental responsibility. We must keep moving people from welfare to work and keep demanding that parents pay their child support.

"We must help our people find good, affordable health care. We should help children get a healthy start. And we should expand and improve in-home care for the elderly in our state.

"We must keep our roads safe from drunk drivers. Lieutenant Governor Wicker is giving strong leadership in this area that has saved lives and I urge action on his recommendations.

"We must keep teenagers from smoking. Attorney General Easley is leading the fight to keep cigarettes out of the hands of minors and we should pass his initiative.

"We must keep our environment clean. Last year you set up the Clean Water Trust Fund. We passed tougher animal waste regulations. This year we should go further. We should clean up our rivers, protect our drinking water and preserve our marine fisheries for commercial and recreational use. And I want to tell you that I will get the Division of Marine Fisheries straightened out immediately.

"And we have a responsibility to do these things without raising taxes. We cut a billion dollars in taxes over the last four years. We've saved taxpayers money and given them better value for their tax dollars.

"We have shown folks what we can do when we put our state's future ahead of narrow political interests.

"Now we face an historic challenge.

"Last month, in my Inaugural Address, I called for a new commitment to public education. Today, I call for action.

"It's going to take both branches of government and it's going to take both parties. It's going to take all of us working together.

"Last year both parties worked together to pass the $1.8 billion school bond. And voters passed it overwhelmingly with bipartisan support.

"Last month Speaker Brubaker and Senator Basnight both spoke of the need to focus on education during this session. I'm proud to say today that both of them have agreed to sponsor the Excellent Schools Act. This is a remarkable and dramatic display for the sake of our children and I want to thank both of them for that.

"Now folks, we can meet this education challenge.

"We can meet it as North Carolinians have met challenges before.

"As this Legislature did at the beginning of the 20th Century, when it created the public school system. Back then we had only a few local schools here and there around the state. Many of them were log cabins with dirt floors. Only a third of school-aged children were even attending school. And some of those schools met only twenty days a year.

"Governor Charles Brantley Aycock challenged the General Assembly to change that -- to give every child the opportunity to learn. Our state was poor, but the Legislature responded.
"In one year that Legislature doubled its annual appropriation for public schools. They started building eight hundred schoolhouses to make public education available all across North Carolina.

"That Legislature met the challenge nearly one hundred years ago.

"Just as the Legislature did during the Depression. In those days, schools all over the country were closing. Our Legislature said we are not going to let our schools close and they took over most of the financial responsibility for education and kept North Carolina's schools open.

"And the Legislature met the challenge in the early 1960's. Our teachers were going to Virginia. I remember it well. But this Legislature met the challenge when it committed North Carolina not only to universal education, but also to quality education.

"Now we have a new challenge for a new century. A challenge to provide our children with an excellent education and a Smart Start.

"And in the next century, our successors and our grandchildren will measure what we did here by two questions.

"Did we help children get a good start in life?

"Did we give our children excellent teachers and excellent schools?

"Only you in this Legislature can provide the answer. Only you in this Legislature can make it happen.

"I look forward to joining with you as this Legislature meets the challenge, makes history and leads North Carolina into the 21st Century.

"Thank you. And God bless you."

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY ADDRESS

"President Wicker, Speaker Brubaker, President Pro Tempore Basnight, Senators and Representatives, all distinguished guests, and ladies and gentlemen:

"I thank you for again inviting me to address you on the state of the Judicial Branch of our government. My address today symbolizes the constitutional independence of the Legislative and Judicial Branches, but it also symbolizes our practical interrelationship.

"As I look around this chamber today at this great General Assembly, I see many friends of long-standing -- both Republicans and Democrats -- who have given invaluable assistance to the Judiciary and friendship to me personally over the years. You have helped to put me at ease every time my duties have brought me to this building as Chief Justice and I thank each and every one of you for your courtesy and your friendship to me.

"One of my goals as Chief Justice is to improve communications between the Judicial Branch of government and the Legislative Branch. For that reason, over the last two years we have invited each of you to spend a day or more with your local judges as they perform their duties. I am constantly amazed at how much actual work is done in our courts, sometimes under very difficult working conditions. If you have not yet done so, I encourage each of you to accept our offer to spend some time with your local judges to observe their problems and to explain to them some of the problems you face."
"We do not want to limit our communications with you to these legislative sessions. Limited communications through the years have caused the Judicial Branch to be treated as just one more statutory agency of government mentioned in passing in the Governor's budget. As a result, the requests of the Judicial Branch often have not received the consideration that requests of a separate but equal branch of government should receive.

"We, in the Judiciary, bear a large part of the responsibility for this situation, because historically we have perhaps been too fiscally conservative. By that, I mean that we have not adequately anticipated and communicated to you our future needs. Instead, we have tended, as today, to wait until our needs have reached near crisis proportions before we have asked for your help. I pledge to you that from this session forward, we will attempt to more accurately predict our needs and inform you of our future needs.

"The State of the Judiciary in March of 1997 presents, at best, a mixed picture. I'll first mention just briefly a sample of some of the initiatives we have undertaken, with your help, which are working. I really want to share your success stories with you.

"In 1995, we established, with your help, a new criminal case management system in two pilot districts -- District 12, which is Cumberland County, and District 13, which is Bladen, Brunswick, and Columbus Counties. I'm happy to tell you that both are working very well. Each month one special week of administrative court is held in the superior courts of those districts to keep all pending cases actually moving toward trial. The resulting efficiency has led to substantial reductions in the pending cases in those districts. For example, felony cases pending in Superior Court in Cumberland County were reduced by over 9 percent in fiscal year 1995-96. This was truly phenomenal, given the fact that in the same period, case filings there increased by 20 percent. In light of such success, we are implementing this new case management system in most of the districts of the state.

"Our experimental drug treatment courts continue to be a success. With your help, we expanded those courts to five judicial districts since last I spoke to you. Alcohol and drug abuse continue to be the single largest factor in our criminal cases in North Carolina, as in the rest of the nation. These drug treatment courts have allowed us to require that whether defendants are put in prison or on probation, they will participate in mandatory drug or alcohol treatment programs and regular testing. Each time one of these courts has a success, a person is diverted from the revolving door of substance abuse, followed by criminal charges, followed by more substance abuse. These people become taxpayers rather than tax burdens. This program is performing well and the credit is to you.

"The child custody mediation program is now operating in 17 district court districts. Under this program, a neutral party sits down with parents and tries to convince them to overcome their adversarial relationship and to attempt to agree in a calm manner what is in the best interest of their children. We have experienced a 56 percent rate of voluntary settlement of the child custody cases which have been a part of this program. Not only does this reduce our pending domestic court backlogs, it also provides for the best interests of these North Carolina children in a nonconfrontational setting.

"We have also experienced some successes in the area of technology, even though we are woefully behind and have far to go. Our financial management computer program used by our Clerks of Court in their bookkeeping functions is in place in 88 counties.

"We have also created a new computer program for District Attorneys and Public Defenders. It will allow for scheduling of cases in our prosecutors' and defenders' offices and it will let them take advantage of data already entered by Clerks of Court and others without the waste of time involved in having to repeatedly re-enter the same information manually. We hope to eventually install it in all of our districts.

"Our civil case processing system is a similar computer program that allows us to better manage our civil cases. It will provide attorneys and the public with quick access to detailed information regarding the current status of civil cases. Very importantly, it will allow judges to know of attorney conflicts anywhere in the state, so that we can avoid conflicting calendaring of cases involving the same attorneys.

"Although I am proud of our successes, I cannot let them hide the reality of our shortcomings. Many of our problems have been documented in the recent report entitled 'Without Favor, Denial or Delay -- A Court System for the 21st Century'. This report was submitted to you last December by the Commission for the Future of Justice and the Courts, chaired by John Medlin, former Chief Executive Officer and present Chairman of the Board of the Wachovia Corporation. That report reviews the present status of the courts and makes detailed recommendations for restructuring our entire court system to meet the challenges of the twenty-first century. The entire report is very thoughtful and very thought-judicial and is worthy of your most serious consideration, and I will discuss that report with you at other times during your session this year. In particular, I think the section on technology demonstrates that our courts are at least fifteen years behind where they should be in computerization, and it spells out with complete accuracy what must be done to bring us into the modern world.

"The commission accepted and performed the task of outlining the needs of our courts in the twenty-first century. My task today, however, is to inform you of the severe immediate needs of our courts. I will now turn to that task.

"Please bear in mind, ladies and gentlemen, that the only duty placed upon the judicial branch of our government by our Constitution is the disposition of civil and criminal cases through our courts. This fundamental or core constitutional duty is and must be our first concern, despite the fact that this General Assembly has, for better or worse, assigned us many other duties. I want to focus the rest of my remarks on this core function and how we're performing.

"When I made my last State of the Judiciary speech in 1995, I had just temporarily halted the constitutionally required rotation of Superior Court Judges from district to district and had sent them all back to their home districts for three months to deal with their backlog of cases. I did the same thing again in 1996, sending them to their home districts for six months. As a result of these and other short-term efforts, we were able, during fiscal year 1994-95, to significantly reduce the number of felonies pending in our Superior Courts for the first time in history -- more than 14% in that one year of reductions. We again reduced the number of felonies pending in our Superior Courts in fiscal year 1995-96. I am proud of these achievements. Our trial courts did all of this with almost no additional personnel or resources.

"Unfortunately, I have now run out of every short-term technique for increasing our case dispositions that I have learned over nearly thirty years in our trial and appellate courts. Compounding this problem, and equally alarming, is the fact that almost every week of the last year I used all of our judicial resources. Each week, in addition to our active judges, I have assigned every one of our retired emergency judges to hold court, yet we are beginning to fall behind again.

"When looking at all of our district and superior court cases, both civil and criminal, the problem becomes clear. In fiscal year 1995-96, we disposed of more total cases, well over 2 ½ million, than in any other year in the history of North Carolina's courts. But in that same fiscal year, we had an even greater increase in new case filings, over 2.7 million, than ever before. Ladies and gentlemen, I can summarize for you now in one sentence all of the statistics concerning the judicial branch's performance of its core constitutional duty. We are deciding an all-time high number of cases, but our courts are falling behind again.

"Like you, I know that some of our court officials work harder than others. Nevertheless, North Carolina consistently ranks among the very top states in judicial productivity. Our District Attorneys also consistently rank among the most productive in the nation. I tell you now that as a court system, we have about reached our maximum limits. We cannot do more or even continue the pace we have set in the last two years without substantial increases in personnel and other resources. We in the Judicial Branch of government want to perform our constitutional duty. It is our life's work and we are sworn to carry it out. We can and will do our part in any state policy to crack-down on dead-beat parents, but only if we are given the needed personnel and resources. We can and will do our part in bearing down on violent juveniles and making our schools safe, but only if we are given the necessary people and resources. We can and will implement any new law you pass to get even tougher with drunk drivers, but only if we are given the people and resources. We can even reduce plea-bargaining in our criminal courts, if that is what you and the public require, but only if we are given, in that case, a truly massive infusion of new people and resources. We want to do our duty, but I implore you to recognize that any calls for legislation creating new crimes or substantially increasing punishment for existing crimes will simply amount to demagoguery if not accompanied by adequate increases in court resources.

"To give you just one concrete example, I point to the victims' rights amendment to our State Constitution which you submitted to the voters and which they passed in the General Election of 1996. As you know, this amendment will require that notice be given to victims of some as yet unidentified types of crimes when court proceedings regarding those crimes are to occur. If the legislation you pass to put this amendment into effect requires such notices in anything other than capital cases, I regret to tell you that we simply will not be able to comply without a substantial increase in personnel. This new provision of the Constitution will be turned into a false promise, unless you appropriate money for enough people to do the job. Believe me, no magical automatic telephone system exists or will exist in this century to do the job of giving these notices. It will simply have to be done the old fashioned way; through hard work, by a lot of people.
"This year we are asking that you create 8 new Superior Court judgeships, 16 District Court judgeships, 56 positions for Assistant District Attorneys, 16 Assistant Public Defenders, 135 new positions for Deputy Clerks of Court, and 41 new positions for personnel to assist victims and witnesses when they come to court. We know that this is a large request, certainly by our standards if not by yours, but we ask that you bear in mind that if we get every one of these new people we are requesting, we will only have brought our caseloads of our prosecutors and judges back to 1983 levels.

"Possibly of even greater importance, we simply must create, in this state, an adequate computer system for the courts if we are to avoid having to come to you, year after year, asking for ever larger increases in personnel. Our requests for the coming fiscal year include 4.8 million dollars simply for maintaining our current totally inadequate system. What we really must do now, however, is design and put in place a true system by which our courts can take advantage of the increased efficiency computer systems have brought to much of the private sector. This was the conclusion of the Future's Commission in the technology section of its report, and I really do recommend that you read that section of the report particularly.

"Tracking the recommendations of the Future's Commission on this point, we are requesting an additional 6.7 million dollars this year to begin the planning and implementation of a time system which will require several years of effort. But the Future's Commission and those of you who are familiar with such large computer systems know that a long-term and consistent funding stream is required through the planning, creation and implementation stages of such a system. Such a system simply cannot be created using a system of year-to-year fluctuating funding as funding becomes available.

"In North Carolina, the Judicial Branch has always been a separate and independent branch of government, but it rarely has been treated as an equal branch of government. Article IV, Section 20 of our State Constitution commands that the operating expenses of the Judicial Branch 'shall be paid from state funds'. In recent years, the Judiciary has consistently been limited to an appropriation of only about 2 to 2.5% of the State's General Fund Budget. The results have been clogged dockets, inadequate record-keeping, and a partial but inadequate computer system which will soon completely bog down without funds for maintenance and upgrades of equipment.
"This year, for example, even if we receive every penny we have requested in our continuation and expansion budgets, the entire Judicial Branch of government, the third Branch, will only be appropriated about 335 million dollars from a General Fund Budget of, I take it, more than 11 thousand billion dollars. This is a meager 3% of the budget. Since 1983, you have almost doubled our prison capacity, but we have had no really substantial increase in judges. It is alarming to note that, even if we do receive everything we have asked for in the way of personnel this year, we will merely be back to our 1983 levels of personnel.

"Prison construction does not occur in a vacuum. No matter how many prisons you build and no matter how many law enforcement officers you put on the street, their efforts will be frustrated without adequate funding for the courts. You cannot put dangerous criminals in prison without first sending them to court. By definition, a 'convict' is not a convict until he has been convicted in a court of law. The Constitution allows no less.

"Failing to provide adequate resources to the courts insures that law enforcement officers, corrections officials and the general public are frustrated. Such problems in North Carolina and in other states are in large part responsible for the increased attacks upon our court system. This should strike fear in the hearts of every one of us, as it is only the rule of law which separates us from those nations in which there is no freedom.

"I do not mean, ladies and gentlemen, that we should get every cent we request without justification; we have never asked for that. Instead, I simply ask that our budget requests be treated as those of an equal constitutional branch of government and evaluated on the basis of what is truly needed to perform our constitutional duties, not on the basis of competition with divisions of state agencies created by statute whose duties are optional and not required by the Constitution.

"My initial conversations with the leaders of both chambers of this great General Assembly have been very cordial and positive, and I am convinced that they will do everything possible to see that the Judicial Branch is able to meet its constitutional obligations to the citizens of this State. Our English cousin, Sir Winston Churchill, the son of an American mother, is reputed to have once said that, 'Americans will always do the right thing -- after they have exhausted every other possibility'. I have more faith in you than that. I think it is my responsibility, as today, during the eight-year term I am now beginning as Chief Justice, to be a voice of conscience, simply reminding you when the tasks you want to assign to the Judicial Branch go beyond our means or funds. For I believe in you, the members of this great General Assembly. Unlike Sir Winston, I believe that you will do the right thing, the first time, every time, if we give you all of the facts. I close now by thanking you for your courtesy in inviting me today, thanking you for your attention to my remarks, and thanking you for your unfailing devotion to the people of North Carolina.

Upon completion of his address, the Chief Justice, joined by the Escort Committee, leaves the Hall of the House.

On motion of Senator Basnight, the Joint Session is dissolved and the Senate returns to its chamber.

The House resumes its business.

REMARKS OF
PRESIDENT WILLIAM J. CLINTON

"Thank you very much. Lieutenant Governor Wicker, Speaker Brubaker, Senator Basnight, the other state elected officials who are here; my good friend, Governor Hunt; Mayor Fetzer. I'd like to thank those who came down here with me today. I brought some of the members of your congressional delegation home -- they don't need to hear this speech, they've heard it before, but I was glad to have them here in moral support -- Congressman David Price; Congressman Bob Etheridge, your former Superintendent of Education; Congressman Mike McIntyre; and Congresswoman Eva Clayton. I thank them for coming.

"I also want to say I'm glad to be joined today by your neighbor, the Secretary of Education, Richard Riley, former Governor of South Carolina -- and by our new Secretary of Defense, Bill Cohen of Maine. We're glad to have him with us today, too. Thank you, Secretary Cohen, for coming.

"I was glad that you mentioned my Chief of Staff, Erskine Bowles. He wouldn't come here with me today because he was afraid all of you would think that he was shirking his duties and not at work. But let me tell you, he is doing a magnificent job. I'm very proud of him. I couldn't believe it when he agreed to come back to Washington and take this job -- especially because I knew it would cost him a small fortune. And he reminded me that his father used to tell him, once you have the tools, you've got to spend some time to add to the wood pile. So, he's up in Washington adding back to the wood pile. And you should all be very proud of him. He is a remarkable man. He's doing a good job.

"I'd also like to thank the other North Carolinians on my staff -- two of the three of them are here today. Doug Sosnik, my former political director and senior counselor, is not here; but my Director of Communications, Don Baer, is here; and Charles Duncan, the Associate Director of Presidential Personnel. They both came home with me and they were glad to have the excuse to come home. And I appreciate their being here and their service.

"I was told that this was the first time a sitting President has addressed the North Carolina State Legislature. If it's not true, don't disabuse me now, because I'm about to say something here. And I am very honored to be here. Even more important, I've spent a little time here over the years and I am honored and mildly surprised that you are here, because it's tournament time and you've got four teams, as usual, in the tournament.

"You may know that I am something of a basketball fanatic. And you may know that one of my most memorable basketball experiences -- I once saw North Carolina and Kentucky play in the Dean Dome, and the car that I came in was towed. But I had so much fun at the ball game, I would have walked all the way back to Arkansas after it was over. I make it a point never to take sides in basketball games unless my home team in Arkansas or my alma mater, Georgetown, are playing. But I am looking forward to the day when the great Dean Smith breaks Adolf Rupp's record.

"There is much for the rest of the nation, and especially the rest of the South, to admire in North Carolina -- the determined and visionary leadership that has characterized this state for many decades in education and economic development, in bringing harmony among peoples of different backgrounds.

"When I was a young man, I followed the work here of then-Governor Terry Sanford, who later became my friend and colleague. Eighteen years ago, when I first started my career as Governor of Arkansas, my best mentor and friend was Jim Hunt. And he is still my mentor and friend. Dick Riley was laughing with Jim Hunt -- we were together 18 years ago as the Governors of Arkansas, South Carolina and North Carolina, and we were laughing that Jim was probably the only one of us who could still get elected governor in our home states after 18 years. And I applaud him on that.

"It was in Chapel Hill that the cornerstone was laid at our nation's first publicly funded university, in Kitty Hawk where man first took to the skies. And today, North Carolina is an aeronautics and an air travel hub center for millions of people. Your state universities receive the highest level of funding for research and development in the nation. You have connected more of your communities than any other state in the country to the Information Superhighway -- something I'm trying to do for every classroom and library in America by the year 2000. The Research Triangle has one of the highest per capita concentrations of Ph.D.'s in the world, and you are clearly one of America's most dynamic centers of economic activity.

"The most important thing about all this is not for me to brag on you, you know that already, but to emphasize the main point: these things do not happen by accident. They are the product of vision and disciplined, long-term effort.

"Now, our country faces the challenges of a new century -- a whole new economy, a whole new way in which people will work and live and relate to each other here at home and around the world. It is driven by information and by technology. Its best hopes may be undermined by its darkest fears, by the old demons of racial and religious and ethnic hatreds, by terrorism and narcotics trafficking and organized crime.

"This new time that we're moving into, that coincidentally, will be part of a new century and a new millennium, will give more people in this state and this nation the chance to live out their dreams than at any period in human history if we take advantage of it to seize our opportunities and deal with our challenges.

"There is unprecedented peace and prosperity now. And it has been very rare in our country's history -- you can go back and find maybe a couple of other examples when we've had real security, a feeling of prosperity, and yet, a whole lot of challenges before us. Usually when people feel secure and relatively prosperous, one of two things happens -- neither of them very laudable, but it's part of human nature -- we either get sort of happy and self-satisfied and don't do anything, or because we are not gripped by big differences, we fall out with each other over small things. And petty things make us less than we ought to be.
"The point I want to make today is that we cannot afford either to be complacent or to be divided among ourselves about small things. For we have been given an opportunity almost unique in American history to fashion a future that will embrace everybody. And we cannot and dare not blow that opportunity.

"If you look at where we are now, you can see the vistas of the future. Our economy produced 12 million jobs in four years -- never happened before in a four-year period. We've had constant decline in crimes. We've had the biggest drop in the welfare rolls in American history in the last four years. In North Carolina, you've seen the unemployment rate drop to 4.2% -- 75,000 people off the welfare rolls, 350,000 new jobs. That's going on all over America. But you know that we have more to do.

"I have been going around the country to the Michigan and the Maryland State Legislatures -- today the Vice President is in California speaking to the State Legislature as I am here with you -- because I know that to achieve the vision that we share for America, we all have to do our part. I've said many times that the era of big government is over. Your federal government is now 285,000 people smaller than it was the day I took office. It's the smallest its been since President Kennedy was in office, in real terms. As a percentage of the civilian work force, the federal government is now as small as it was when Franklin Roosevelt was sworn into office the first time, before the New Deal.

"But the challenges we face are still very big, indeed. If they cannot be solved by government alone, and especially by the federal government, obviously, a new partnership is required. And new efforts, new activity, new responsibility is required of people at the state level, at the local level and in their private lives. The biggest challenge we face today, I believe, is the challenge of creating a world-class education system that embraces every child that lives in this state and in this nation. And this must not be a political football.

"In the Cold War, because we knew that communism threatened our existence, it became commonplace that politics would stop at the water's edge. And the Democrats and the Republicans would fight like cats and dogs over whatever it was they were fighting about, but when it came to standing up to the threat of communism we were together. If the President of one party went abroad on a mission of world peace, he was never criticized back home by members of the other party, because politics stopped at the water's edge.
"I think we understand today, intuitively, that education holds the key to our future in the 21st century. And I believe politics must stop at the schoolhouse door.

"When I was governor, a long time ago now, North Carolina already had the highest percentage of its' adults in institutions of higher education of any state in the South. The economy was growing and it was diversifying, and yet you still had more success in maintaining manufacturing jobs than any state in our region, and indeed, in the country. You know all this. Last year, you had the biggest increase in 8th grade math scores, I noticed, in the country. I was in Michigan and I said that they had had the second biggest increase in math scores, and the minute I got in the car, Governor Hunt made sure I knew who was number one. So I knew that.

"The Governor chose to be sworn in at Needham Broughton High School, his old school, to make clear that school standards and teaching excellence will be his top priorities. But with all the progress that we have made, you know we've got a lot more to do.

"Between 1992 and the year 2000, 89% of the new jobs created in this economy will require more than a high school level of literacy and math skills -- 89%. Today, even though over 80% of our children are graduating from high school, more than half -- or about half the people entering the work force, are not prepared with these skills. We all know that is true.

"For 20 years, inequality among working Americans grew. In the last few years it started to shrink -- in the last couple of years -- as we've gotten -- more and more of our new jobs are becoming higher-wage jobs, as growth and productivity are permitting wages to rise again.

"Many people, just a couple of years ago, were saying, well, is the middle class vanishing in America? Will it always be squeezed? Are we going to create a country with a huge number of people that are very well off and an even much larger number of people that are poor, with a smaller middle class? We've seen in the last few years that that does not have to happen. We can begin to grow the middle class again with productivity and growth and the right kinds of new jobs, but we have to be able to provide the people with the skills to hold those jobs if we're going to maintain a high-wage, high-growth, high-opportunity society in America in the 21st century. And our schools are still turning out millions of young people who simply cannot do that.
"That is why our number one priority has to be to make America's education the best in the world. We have to have a nation in which every 8 year-old can read independently, every 12 year-old can log on to the Internet, every 18 year-old can go on to college and every adult American can keep on learning throughout an entire lifetime.

"In my State of the Union address, I laid out a 10-point call to action for American education that describes the steps we have to meet. First, we have to make sure that all of our children come to school ready to learn. Our balanced budget will expand Head Start to a million children. But we all must do more, and a lot of that has to be done at the state level. And I hope every state in the country is looking closely at the Smart Start program in North Carolina.

"The idea of having all elements of a community -- in a community nonprofit environment -- working on not only education, but health care and parenting skills and child care -- trying to give our poorest children a coherent early childhood is terribly important. Scientists have discovered that learning begins in the earliest days of life. And now, we have to explore how parents and educators can best use these findings.

"On April 17th, the First Lady and I will host the White House Conference on Early Childhood Development and Learning in Washington, and I want Smart Start to be an important part of what is considered there.

"Let me just give you one simple example of the scientific findings. Over half of the capacity of the brain to absorb and to learn and to grow, the capacity is developed in the first four years of life. In the first four years of life, if a child has parents who understand this and who constantly -- whether they have a Ph.D. or they were high school drop-outs -- but who constantly work at nourishing the child's learning capacities, that child will get 700,000 positive contacts.

"But in the typical experience of a child with a single parent, let's say, with very little education and no self-confidence about parenting, and no training and no understanding, and a sense that no difference can be made, and the child that's left in front of the television in the first four years, that child will get 150,000 positive contacts -- a more than four-to-one difference.

"Now, you tell me what the future is going to be like for them. Smart Start can change that. And our cooperative efforts can change that. But we have to understand that we have totally underestimated the impact of this whole thing. And the new scientific findings impose upon all of us a heavier responsibility than we have ever had for developing the capacities of our children in their earliest years. So I look forward to that.

"I believe we have to do more to give constructive alternatives, creative alternatives for our young children in our public schools. I favor public school choice. I've been a pioneer supporter of the charter school movement. I think that it's important to open schools that stay opened as long as they do a good job, but only as long as they do a good job. And I know that this afternoon, your State Board of Education has the opportunity to open more charter schools than any state has ever opened at one time, to foster innovation and competition and renewal. I hope the Board will take that step today, and one more time, North Carolina will be in the vanguard of a movement you can be proud of.

"We have got to have a commitment to rebuild our schools and give our children the facilities they need to learn in. We have the largest number of children in public schools in history. The Secretary of Education never gets tired of reminding me, since I am the oldest of the baby boomers, that our generation has finally been eclipsed in numbers by the people that are in the public schools today. We also have the physical facilities, in many of our schools, deteriorating at a rapid rate. So, for the first time in history, I have proposed a program that will enable us, at the national level, to support local efforts to increase their investment in the physical facilities of the schools by making sure that the interest rates are lower and the costs are lower in the places where the need is most critical.

"I'm going to Florida after I leave you, and tomorrow morning, I will be at a school where there are 17, I understand according to my briefing -- 17 trailers for classroom space around the existing school facility in a modest-sized community in Florida. That is not an atypical experience in many of our states.

"We have to meet our national goal of connecting every classroom and library to the Internet by the year 2000. We have to open the doors of college to all. North Carolina pioneered, with your network of four-year and two-year higher educational institutions, pioneered the idea that education ought to be a lifetime experience and that the doors ought to be open to everyone.

"In the last four years, we have lowered the cost and improved the reach of the student loan program, added 200,000 slots to work-study, opened up almost 70,000 slots for college through the national service program, AmeriCorps. We have worked very, very hard, but I think we have to do more.

"It is clear to me -- if you look at the job profile, where 89% of the new jobs will require more than a high school education, we have to make two years of education after high school -- the 13th and 14th grades -- just as universal in America by the year 2000 as a high school diploma is today -- every bit as universal.

"To achieve that our balanced budget plan proposes a $1,500 HOPE Scholarship -- a tax credit that reflects the cost of the typical community college tuition in America, modeled on Governor Zell Miller's HOPE Scholarship program in Georgia. We propose to give people a tax deduction of up to $10,000 a year for the cost of any education after high school; an expanded IRA that you can withdraw from, tax-free, if the money is used to pay for higher education; and the largest increase in Pell Grants in 20 years, along with another 100,000 work-study slots. That will help North Carolina, and it will help America.

"Finally, let me say on this subject, we know we have to make sure learning continues throughout a lifetime. We know that we have older and older students going back to community colleges, changing their careers and getting new careers and opening up new vistas. We have a federal response which I think is totally antiquated. There are at least, conservatively speaking, at least 70 different federal programs that were developed with the best of intentions to try to help to pay for various training programs for people who lose their jobs or people who are grossly underemployed.

"I have proposed for four years -- with a Democratic Congress and with the Republican Congress -- getting rid of these programs and putting the money in a pot and sending a skills grant to an unemployed person or an underemployed person who has qualified for any of them, and let them go to the nearest community college or four-year college, if it's the appropriate one -- whatever is nearest and best to get their education. We do not need a lot of government intermediaries here. People know -- people know what they need. They're capable of making a judgment.

"In a state like North Carolina and most places in the country, nearly everybody's within driving distance of a community college that works. And that's -- I call that my G.I. Bill for America's Workers. And if you could prevail upon your legislators to support it, I would appreciate it. I've been trying for four years to pass that thing. I would appreciate it."
"I think the most important thing we have to do is to make sure that our children have met certain national standards in basic courses. In 1989, when President Bush and the governors met at the University of Virginia, I had the honor of being the Democratic governor chosen to try to write the nation's education goals. And at the time, we always assumed that out of those goals there would come national standards and a system, a nationally recognized system of testing our children to see if they met those standards.

"Well, that hasn't happened yet. And as a result, we still don't know. We don't really know whether every child in every classroom knows what he or she needs to know when he or she needs to know it in math and in basic language skills. I have challenged every state in this country to adopt high national academic standards, not just in math and language, but in other areas as well, to participate nationally by 1999 in an examination of 4th graders in reading and 8th graders in math, so that we can see how every child is doing in meeting those basic standards.

"Now, this is, I know, somewhat controversial. There are people who have actually argued that you couldn't possibly have a national examination reflecting national standards in a country as diverse as America -- as if it's some sort of plot, as if math is different in Raleigh than Little Rock; or any board of education could rewrite the rules of algebra for Alaska as opposed to Florida. I think that is inherently implausible.

"When you compete here in North Carolina for a new high-tech plant, when the Research Triangle finds some new breakthrough, you do it based on an international competition -- you have to win based on standards that are imposed. We have to be willing to hold our children to the same standards and to hold ourselves to the same standards.

"Governor Hunt told me, today, that he will endorse our call for national standards and a testing plan. North Carolina, therefore, would be the third state to do so. The Republican governor of Michigan joined in, along with his legislative leaders, just a few days ago.

"But let me say what I think we need to do. A lot of you know a lot about this. We have some standardized tests in America, but we don't have any tests to nationally accepted standards. The closest we have is the so-called NAEP test, the National Assessment of Education Progress. But, as all of you know, it only is given to a sample of students in various districts. There is no examination in America which says, here are the standards that everyone should know in language or math, and here is a test which reflects those standards; and it doesn't matter whether you're first or last in your class, it matters whether you get over this bar. If you're first in your class and nobody is over this bar, nobody knows what they need to know. If you're last, but you're over the bar, you're still going to do okay in this old world.

"I think that is very important. We all need to know that. You know -- and let me also say that I know it won't be easy, because some of our kids won't do all that well at first. If you saw the State of the Union address, you know that I introduced two students from 20 school districts in Northern Illinois who took the Third International Math and Science Survey and the 20 school districts up there tied for first in science and second in math in the survey, with Singapore for first. But, if they had finished dead last, I would have been equally proud of them because they were willing to actually hold themselves to international standards of achievements and measure themselves.

"And this is where we need all of your help. I'm convinced that one of the reasons that we've never done this in America is that we were afraid if the news was bad we wouldn't know what to do about it. And I think that in so doing, we have sold our children short. All the evidence is, all the scientific evidence is, all the anecdotal evidence is, that almost all of our children, without regard to their race, their income and where they live, can learn what they need to know to compete and win in the global economy. And when we do not hold them to high standards because we are afraid that in the beginning they won't meet them, we are selling their futures down the drain and we are insulting them, because they can meet these standards.

"What we have to be willing to do is to say, okay, we'll have these exams, we'll hold people to high standards; some people won't make it first; we don't want to punish people, we want to lift everybody up; but we can't know how to lift people up unless we know where we start.

"When I go around the world, people find it unbelievable that we have no national standard in America to tell our parents and our school leaders whether our children know what they're supposed to know in the basic skills that are necessary to learn all the other more sophisticated things we want people to know.

"And I tell you, I believe in the kids of this country. I have been in schools in circumstances where it would be unthinkable that people could learn -- because of crime in the neighborhoods and because of poverty in the neighborhoods. And I have seen children performing at very high levels, meeting standards that would be acceptable in any place in the entire world. And I am tired of people telling me that there is some reason we shouldn't have that opportunity given to every American child. We are not protecting our children by denying them the chance to develop their God-given capacities to measure up to what they need to know and do, to do well in the future. And we ought to stop it and do better.

"Now, on a lighter note, you may wonder why the Secretary of Defense is here with me today. Before I came down here, Senator Helms asked me to tell you that he is not the guard that Jesse once said I would need to come to North Carolina. Ever since I got a Chief of Staff that does not speak with an accent, we've been getting along a lot better, Senator Helms and I.

"There is another reason that the Secretary of Defense is here today. We want to set an example -- we think we ought to start the standards movements with the schools that we run at military bases. At 66 schools across our country and 167 more around the world, our Department of Defense educates 115,000 of our children every year. The Department of Defense runs a school system as big as that of the State of Delaware. And I met some of the children, some of the teachers and some of the parents out at the airport when I came in today.

"Sixteen of those schools are at Camp LeJeune and Fort Bragg, right here in North Carolina, and nearly 8,000 students attend them. It's important that we give these children the best possible education, too -- especially these children -- because their families sacrifice, they live far from home, they often risk their lives for their country. It's important, too, because these students come from every racial and ethnic background. They move from place to place as their parents are transferred from base to base.

"Because of this mobility, no group of students better underscores the need for common national standards and a uniform way of measuring progress than this group. If standards can work in these schools, they can work anywhere.

"So I am pleased to announce today that, with the strong support of the Secretary of Defense, the Department of Defense schools have stepped forward to ask that their students be among the first to take the new tests when they become available. The Secretary of Defense and Secretary of Education Riley have both committed their work.

"Starting in 1999, students in classrooms, from Wiesbaden Air Force Base in Germany to Kadena Air Force Base in Okinawa, to Camp LeJeune will learn the same rigorous material and take the same national tests as students throughout this state, and I hope throughout our entire nation. We can make our public schools just like our military, the best on Earth, if, like our military, we are willing to adhere to high, rigorous standards for all people, regardless of their background. That's what we ought to do.

"And I thank you, Mr. Secretary, for being here today.

"Let me also say that we know we have to do more work to prepare all of our students. And the Department of Defense is being directed today through its school system to use every resource to prepare the students for 1999 when the new math and science tests -- or math and reading tests are ready.

"Let me mention one other thing that I think is very important, and it goes well with a lot of what you are doing here with your pre-school years and your early years. It is appalling to me that 40% of America's 8 year-olds cannot read a book on their own. But it's true. And the rest of this stuff is just sort of whistling in the breeze if people can't read. So we have launched the America Reads Initiative, through the Department of Education, to mobilize an army of a million reading tutors, properly trained, to help make sure that by the year 2000 every 8 year-old can read independently.

"Thirteen North Carolina college presidents have pledged to commit a portion of their work-study students to serve as tutors, and I thank them for that. We're going to have 300,000 new work-study students over a four-year period. If we can put at least a third of them into reading instruction for our young children, we'll be a long way toward those million volunteers.

"We ought to be clear about something else, too -- and here's something that I really take my hat off to Governor Hunt for. We cannot expect our children to meet high standards unless we demand that our teachers meet high standards. We have to do whatever is necessary to make sure that they do.

"Last year, the report of Governor Hunt's National Commission on Teaching and America's Future laid out a blueprint for the road ahead. And all of you have, together across party lines, to develop a comprehensive legislative agenda that implements the report's recommendations. We have to start by recognizing and rewarding our best teachers. We all know what a difference a good teacher can make in the life of a child. I know what a difference my teachers made in mine.
"The National Board for Professional Teaching Standards, led by Governor Hunt, has encouraged teachers all over the country to improve their skills and seek certification as master teachers. North Carolina already has more certified national teachers than any other state in the country. And the Governor was kind enough to bring five or six of them out to the airport to meet me, and they were not ashamed of the fact that they had been board-certified master teachers.

"Over 20% of all the teachers that have been certified are here in North Carolina. That's the good news. The bad news is that only about 500 teachers have been certified. In our balanced budget plan, there's enough money to help 100,000 teachers achieve this important credential. Now, the states need to do things like North Carolina has and offer to pay -- the Governor's plan would pay master teachers another 12% more. You have to encourage people. But we need 100,000 at least, because what we really want is at least one board-certified master teacher in every single school building in America. If you get one in every single school building in America, we know from the research that they will change the education environment and help lift the standards that other teachers achieve and help to lift the quality of teaching in all the classrooms.

"So that is one of the things that we're trying to do in our budget. But again, I'd say that we are following your lead and especially the years and years that Governor Hunt has put into this. In April, Secretary Riley will hold a national forum on attracting and preparing teachers with 50 of our nation's best teachers and thousands of others. And we are going to have to do more to encourage our brightest young people to become teachers.

"Finally, we also have to make sure, as the Governor said, that while good teachers get a raise, the truly bad teachers who can't measure up should get a pink slip. We have to do that in an expeditious and fair way. Today, that is too time consuming and costly. In some states, it can cost hundreds of thousands of dollars. That same money could be and should be used to reward good teachers and to train those who are trying to improve their skills. We can change this, as they have in Cincinnati where school boards and teachers' unions have worked together in partnership to find more efficient and fair ways to remove teachers who should leave the classroom. Encouraging teachers is not easy or cheap, but again, I say, we know what a phenomenal difference it makes.

"Finally, to elevate teaching, I think we have to reform the way we spend money in our schools and give parents the tools to demand more accountability. Today, the Vice President is discussing that at the State Legislature in Sacramento, California. His re-inventing government initiative has helped us to shrink the national government to the smallest it's been in three decades and to take that money and invest it in education, invest it in technology, invest it in transportation, invest it in growing the economy and building a better future. We have to have the same sort of national effort to analyze the way expenditures are made in public education throughout America, so that we can support those who are committed to reducing unnecessary bureaucratic expenditures and increasing expenditures on children and teachers and learning.

"Yesterday, I did a town hall meeting, with 35 children, on drugs. And I asked all these kids -- and some of these kids had been on drugs and were off drugs, a couple of these kids were in treatment, some of them had been in families of gang members who had been involved in drugs, and then some of them had never used drugs. It was a whole panoply of kids. But I went through child after child after child, and I asked them to tell me about their circumstances. And they all said, we need mentors, we need programs we're interested in. And one after another, they kept telling me about how their school had had to abandon its music program or its art program, its physical education programs, its intramural athletic programs -- all the things that happen after school or on weekends that keep kids involved in positive things.

"We have to understand that however much money we have for our schools, we have to make sure we are spending it first and foremost on instruction and, secondly, on ways designed to give the children the best chance to live productive, wholesome, good, constructive lives -- and that ought to be a national effort as well.

"We have found phenomenal amounts of money that we could redirect in the federal government to reducing the deficit or investing in our future simply by slowly, but deliberately, eliminating hundreds of unnecessary programs, thousands of unnecessary regulations and reducing -- without running people off -- just slowly reducing the size of government until we have got it to the point where I mentioned to you earlier.

"And we have to work on that in our schools because we cannot afford to waste a single dollar when it comes to these children's future. And it is folly to believe that we're not paying for it when we take these kids away from a chance to have a full, wholesome experience and to be in those schools after school hours or before school hours and doing things in addition to their academic learning. So I hope you will support that.
"Let me just say one final word in closing about another big job we have to do together. We have to finish the work of welfare reform. In the first four years of my presidency, we gave waivers from federal rules to 43 states to do all kinds of things to help move people from welfare to work. We now know that partly because of the growing economy, partly because of state welfare reform efforts, and partly because of a 50% increase in child support collections nationwide, the welfare rolls went down by 2.6 million in four years -- a record number.

"Then the Congress passed and I signed the welfare reform bill, which says there will still be a national guarantee for poor children for food and medicine, but there's a limit to how long an able-bodied person can be on welfare without going to work. And we're going to give it to the states and let the states decide how to design their plans to move people from welfare to work.

"Well, what I want to tell you folks is that this is like that old country singer, Chet Atkins, used to say, 'you've got to be awful careful what you ask for in this old life, because you might get it'. And now you've got it. And here is what you have: in order to meet the demands of the law that was supported by almost every governor and every state official in the country, we must move about another million people from welfare to work. Now, keep in mind, when we reduced the welfare rolls by 2.6 million, some of those were children -- only about a million of those were people moving from welfare into the work force. So we moved a million people in four years when the economy created almost 12 million jobs. We have to move another million in the next four years because of what the law says, whether the economy creates jobs or not. And it is your responsibility to design a plan to get that done.

"Now, I want to help. And I have proposed federal legislation to give a tax credit of 50% for up to $10,000 in salaries for people who hire people specifically off welfare. I have proposed to give extra cash to high-impact, high-unemployment areas so people can do public service work, community service work, if necessary.

"But there are more things you can do. Your Work First program here in North Carolina is encouraging private employers by subsidizing paychecks and holding job fairs. These are the kinds of things we have to do everywhere. But you really need to look at how your program works. And you need to look at whether you have a system for challenging private employers to look at the incentives that are available. And you need to figure out how many people every county is going to have to move from welfare to work in order for you not to have a train wreck at the end of the next four years.

"Every state has to do this. And it's going to have to be done county by county, community by community. Because I'm telling you, everybody that ever said people who are able-bodied on welfare ought to have to work now has a moral obligation to make sure that the people who have been told they have to work actually have jobs so they can work. We have to do that.

"Let me just say -- I have been to a lot of states and looked at a lot of programs. In Missouri, they go to employers and say, we'll give you the welfare check for up to four years if you need it; but you have to pay people $1.75 over the minimum wage and we'll give you the welfare check as an employment-in-training supplement. And you can have it for a slot, but not for a particular individual, for up to 10 years if you'll just keep being part of our program. So they've got a lot of employers -- small, medium and large -- who are part of that.

"You have to do something like that to do something for the employers who are not taxed. Community nonprofits and religious organizations can hire a lot of people from welfare into their ranks, and have a lot to do with integrating their families into the mainstream of life in North Carolina. But they have to have some incentive to do so.

"The second thing I would urge you to do is to make sure that as you realize savings from people moving from welfare to work -- I think you can meet your goals better if you turn around and invest at least the initial of those savings back into the transition. We did a good job of adding $4 billion to child care for people moving from welfare to work. But we still may not have enough child care to do the job. And we know that is a huge barrier. You cannot ask people to hurt their kids when they go to work. And a lot of folks entering these entry-level jobs don't make much money. Now, we can carry them over with Medicaid health insurance for their kids for a while -- they've got to have the child care.

"This bill gives you a lot of flexibility and now you have to design this program. I would just implore you to really get down to brass tacks, get the facts. How many people does North Carolina have to move from welfare into jobs in four years? How many is that per county? How many is that per community? What are the tools we have? Who have we asked to do the job?

"I believe that the private sector is anxious to be asked to participate in
I believe they want to end the permanent underclass in America and help people move into the thriving, growing middle class. But we have to do it in an organized, disciplined way state by state. We're going to do our part, but we need you to do yours.

"Finally, let me say that it is obvious from looking at education that we have to have a new partnership in America. Washington can lead the way, but the work has to be done by all Americans. North Carolina has led the way for a long time.

"I was smiling today when I got up and I thought about coming down here, and I thought about the first time I was ever in a meeting with Governor Hunt and Governor Riley -- 18 years ago -- we were all much younger then. And we had this idea that all the southern states would reach the national average in per capita income and have all these great opportunities for our people if only we could have an education system that was as good as anyplace in the country and it would reach everybody, without regard to race or income.

"And, ironically, the mission that many of us who are Southerners have carried for 20 or 30 years in our hearts is now the mission of America in a global society dominated by information and technology. And it is within our reach, literally, to give every single child in America the greatest future in human history if we create the conditions in which we can flourish -- that's partly our job, through national defense and meeting the security challenges and providing a good economy -- but also having the tools.

"We cannot guarantee the future for any child, but we can give every child the tools to make the most of his or her own life. That is now America's mission. It is a mission this State has pursued for a long time. If you will lead the way, America's best days are still ahead.

"Thank you and God bless you all."

The following prayer is offered by the Right Reverend Dr. John M. K. Paterson, Edinburgh, Scotland.

"Almighty and ever blessed God, who in this season has revealed to us the depth of Your love and compassion in the life and death of Jesus Christ our Lord, grant that as this House meets to consider the business of this day, the spirit of grace and goodness may direct the hearts and minds of Your people.

"We confess before You our faults and failings - those things we have done which we ought not to have done, those things which we ought to have done but have left undone. Lord, have mercy upon us and remind us again of the gracious gift of Your forgiveness and the offer of that new beginning which can come only through our Lord Jesus Christ.

"Gracious God, we pray for all who are in the care of this noble House, for the less fortunate of mind, body, or estate as well as those who prosper and bring rewards to this beautiful state. May all come to know the touch of Your hand upon them and be encouraged in all they say and do to love You more and serve You better.

"Through the merit and mediation of Jesus Christ our Lord to whom be ascribed as is now due all might and majesty, dominion, and power, world without end. Amen."

The following prayer is offered by Dr. Albert G. Edwards, Minister Emeritus, First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, North Carolina, and former House Chaplain (1975-1983).

"Our triune God, unto all hearts are open, all desire known, from whom no secrets are hidden, and whose eyes behold our behavior day and night, we offer as our prayer the words of one who is unknown but whose words are remembered. From the cowardice that shrinks from new truths, from the laziness that is content with half truth, and from the arrogance that thinks it knows it all, oh Thou, Great God, deliver us. And we make our prayer in the name of Him who will lead us into all truths. Amen."

The House meets at 6:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by Dr. Dumas A. Harshaw, Jr., First Baptist Church, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our shelter from the stormy blast,
And our eternal home.

Under the shadow of thy throne,
Still may we dwell secure,
Sufficient is thine arm alone,
And our defense is sure."

"Dear Eternal God,

"Our hearts rejoice because of the gift of another day. We are grateful for the measure of mercy which is ours because of Thy guidance.

"Help us to find hope in the promise of Your presence and the strength in the comfort of Your Word.

"Enlighten our minds to know the ways of goodness and peace, that our relationships may reflect Thy glory and bring love and meaning to the lives of others.

"We are thankful, though overwhelmed, by the awesome responsibilities You have placed upon our shoulders. Give us courage today to fulfill the trust which has been placed in us.

'The Task That Is Given You

To each one is given a marble carve for the wall;
A stone that is needed to heighten the beauty of all;
And only His soul has the magic to give it grace;
And only His hands have the cunning to put it in place;

Yes, the task that is given to each one, no other can do;
So the errand is waiting; it has waited through ages for you.
And now you appear; and the hushed ones are turning their gaze,
To see what you do with your chance in the chamber of days.'

Edwin Markham

"In the name of Christ. Amen."

The Speaker leads the Body in the Pledge of Allegiance.

FORTY-FOURTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, April 15, 1997

The House meets at 2:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Joe Collins, Central United Methodist Church, Denton, North Carolina.

"Eternal and everlasting God, as the 1997 Session of the North Carolina House convenes, we give thanks for the great State of North Carolina and its people. From Cherokee County to Currituck County, from Caswell County to Columbus County, and all 100 counties in between, we are truly blessed with a land of beauty and charm. From the Appalachian hills and its hamlets, to the Barrier Islands of the Outer Banks, the majesty of God's creation abounds. Where the Wright Brothers learned to fly, and the Cherokee made the mountains their home. We are a state made up of small farms and furniture plants, textile mills and tobacco barns, growing cities and picturesque seaport towns. We give thanks for our rich heritage, and seek Your direction as we move into the future. The pride of our State is our people - 7½ million - Black and White, Hispanic and Indian, who call themselves North Carolinians. We are a people who live and work and worship in the knowledge that God is sovereign. And, we give thanks that You are loving and just. As the 1997 Session convenes, we pray Your blessings upon our elected representatives. Lead them as they work together to improve our State, and may they never forget that it is the people of North Carolina in which they represent.

"We close this prayer asking forgiveness of our sins, and the blessing of Your spirit for guidance and leadership. Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of April 14 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by electronic vote (92-0).

Tuesday, April 29, 1997

The House meets at 4:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Angela Cook, First Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"O Lord, our governor, Your glory shines throughout the world and our State. We commend our State to Your loving care and tender mercies, that we may live securely in peace and may be guided by Your providence and divine authority. Give all those in positions of power and leadership the wisdom and strength to know Your will and to do it. These are difficult and trying times, O God, help these leaders of our State to remember that they are called to serve the people as lovers of truth and justice. Give these faithful servants the piece of mind to bring about change and growth where it is most needed in our land. In a spirit of kindness, wisdom and love, help all of us to reach out to one another and to learn from others with whom we do not always agree or understand. We ask all these things in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord. Amen."

REMARKS

BY REVEREND BILLY GRAHAM

"Lieutenant Governor Wicker, Speaker Brubaker, President Pro Tem Basnight, Governor Hunt, Senator Helms, distinguished guests that are here today. It's a great privilege for me to be at the North Carolina General Assembly. I remember being here in 1971. You look a little bit different. You look a little older since those days and so do I. It's a privilege for me to be here at the State Capitol named for Sir Walter Raleigh.

"When I was in high school I was fascinated with North Carolina history. I was reared in the Piedmont section of the state near Charlotte on a small dairy farm. So, I've not been in the eastern part of the state as much as other parts. Eastern North Carolina has been a citadel of the state's history since Raleigh's dream of colonization came to such a mysterious end from the Lost Colony that disappeared from Roanoke Island over 400 years ago.

"Following that attempt to colonize in the 1580's, the region remained Native American territory for decades. Permanent white settlers came into North Carolina in the 1650's from the English colony of Jamestown, Virginia. I remember one day I was sitting beside President John Kennedy before he was to give an address. He suddenly turned to me and he said, 'by the way', he said, 'what religions settled North Carolina?' And I had no idea of what he had in mind. I didn't know why he wanted to know. I told him about the Moravians and about the Presbyterians and the Methodists. Later on some Baptists got here. And when he got up to speak, he used all of that in his speech.

"Others came down on a great wagon road from Pennsylvania through the Shenandoah Valley. Some came by ship from England. They were all yearning for a plot of land and freedom from all the persecution and the oppression that they felt in Europe. North Carolina has always stood for freedom. North Carolina ratified the United States Constitution as the twelfth state in 1789 and, like several other of the original states, North Carolina moved our Capitol westward from the seaboard soon after the American Revolution. Now, if they had waited until today, they would have moved it to Asheville, if Charlotte hadn't stopped them on the way. You all know our state's history better than I do.

"The first time I ever stood before a legislative group like this was in Massachusetts. That may surprise you. That was 1950. I was introduced by a man that gave me quite a strong introduction and I had no idea who he was and or who he was to become. But, years later, he told me about it. His name was Tip O'Neill and he gave me a powerful introduction, which was a little bit of a indication of things to come, as far as he was concerned.

"Although I have addressed a number of State Legislatures since then, I consider this the highest honor of all, is to be here in my own home state and to see you people that represent us and the wonderful work that you do and the tremendous progress that North Carolina makes. You're always looked on as a State that is way ahead of the rest of them in the South. And it's always a great pride and joy for me to tell people that I come from North Carolina, the greatest state in America.

"I have always loved history. As a young boy, I remember the famous painting of Washington crossing the Delaware. Only later did it occur to me that Washington did not get across that river by himself. He had a lot of help, and my ministry has had a lot of help. I get a lot of honors, and things said about Billy Graham, but I get sick and tired of the name Billy Graham. It's a whole group of us -- a team of people -- that God has used to travel to 105 countries and preach the Gospel, and to see many lives changed and stand before all kinds of universities.

"I guess I have spoken to every university in New England and college -- whether it's Vassar or any of those schools -- and on the West Coast. You've been reading about Stanford. I've been there several times. In England, to Cambridge and Oxford several times, sometimes a week at a time. Yale invited me for a whole week once and they said, 'what will you say in a week?' I said, 'I'm going to say the same thing every night.' So they came every night. I said, 'the human heart is the same and the Gospel of Christ is the same and I don't have any other message.' Sid Lovett was the Chaplain. He was the one that got the University to invite me and it was packed every night. And the same at Harvard and those other schools, Brown and Vassar, and other ones - Dartmouth.

"However, I would not be here today if it were not for an event that happened near Charlotte a number of years ago. An evangelist came through Charlotte and he was preaching in what was called the Tabernacle. He preached the Gospel in a way I had never heard it before. He just stood and opened the Bible and just told us what the Bible said. I was a high school student and I listened. One night I responded to his invitation to come forward and receive Christ into my heart. And I did that. And it changed my life and I've never been the same since. I'll never forget a verse of scripture that he quoted, 'as many as received Him, to them gave He the power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on His name.' (John 1:12) That meant that I was supposed to respond to God's offer of love and mercy and forgiveness. And I did respond. God said, 'I forgive you, I love you'. And I said, 'Lord, I receive You into my heart', and it changed my life. I had to repent of my own sins. I had to receive Christ as Savior. And when the preacher asked people to come, many people came. I didn't have any emotions about it, but I was embarrassed because some of my school friends were there and here I was standing there in the middle of them. Some of them probably snickering a little bit, but if I've accomplished anything in my life, it's only been because I had the help of so many wonderful people that have been in my organization and team, and my family.

"We have hanging in our office a copy of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence of May 20, 1775, in Charlotte. I would like to draw your attention to a few words from that Declaration which you know, '...that we...are, and...ought to be a sovereign and self-governing (people) under the...power of...God', and we ought to have ourselves under God's power at all times. And that's what's missing in our lives today, in my judgment. And the reason we have so many problems -- we haven't turned to the right source for the solution to our problems.

"We're soon to face another crossroads in our history. In less than four years from now, the world will enter the third millennium. What will it hold for us? Will it be a new era of unprecedented peace and prosperity, or will it be a continuation of our descent into the new depths of crime, oppression, injustice, sexual immorality, and evil? Ironically, many people heralded at the dawn of this twentieth century with optimism. The steady march of scientific and social progress was going on, and they believed that that would vanquish all social problems in the country. Some optimistic theologians founded a magazine called the Christian Century. They said this was to be the Christian century. But no other century has been ravaged by such devastating wars, genocides and tyrannies. During this century, we have witnessed the outer limits of human evil.

"There's never been such a moment when we had the facility to bring evil into the home like we have today. They had a little press conference a moment ago, and somebody asked me what I thought about Ellen. I said, 'I watched five minutes and my wife wouldn't let me watch any more'. So, I'm not going to make any comment because I didn't see it. But no other century has been ravaged by such terrible things as we have seen in the last few years in our country. Our mood on the brink of the twenty-first century is far more somber. Terms like ethnic cleansing, random violence and suicide bombing have become part of our daily vocabulary.

"There's much, of course, that is overwhelmingly good about America, and we thank God for our heritage of freedom and abundant blessings. America has been a nation that has shown a global compassion that the rest of the world seemingly does not understand. We have the strongest civil rights laws on our books of any country in the world. There's never been a country that has such laws as we have, if we only kept them. I'm proud to know that the citizens of North Carolina have an unusual compassion in comparison to citizens of other parts of the world that I go to. We have only to think of Hurricane Hugo, or last year's Hurricane Fran, which hit you all here in Raleigh, including my daughter Ann's neighborhood. In times like that, North Carolinians rally around and show a deep compassion and caring for friends and strangers. After World War II, because we had the atomic bomb, we could have controlled the world, but we didn't. We rebuilt the economies of our enemies, until Japan and Germany became strong economic powers because of what we did out of compassion for them.

"Nevertheless, something has happened since those days, and there's much about America that is no longer good. You know the problems as well as I do. Racial and ethnic tensions that threaten to rip apart our cities and neighborhoods, not only here but throughout the country. Crime and violence of epidemic proportions in most of our cities. Children taking weapons to schools, if you can believe it. Broken families, poverty, drugs. All of these things, the whole list is known to all of us. We see it almost every day in our newspapers. Would the founders of this State even recognize the society that they sacrificed to establish? I fear not! We have confused liberty with license, and we are paying the awful price.

"We're a society poised on the brink on self destruction, in my judgment, unless God intervenes and helps us. But what's the real cause? We call conferences. We have meeting after meeting. We have shuttle diplomacy going on on almost every subject. But what is the real problem? The real problem is within ourselves. It's in our own hearts. Something has to be done about the heart, the spiritual heart disease that man has.

"Almost 3,000 years ago, King David, the greatest king Israel ever had, sat under the stars and contemplated the reasons for human dilemma. He listed three things that the world's greatest scientists have never been able to solve. And it seems the more we know and the greater our technology, the more difficulties there are. In perhaps the best known passage of the Old Testaments -- Psalm 23 -- that most of you could say by heart, David listed those three problems. The first, he said, the first problem is emptiness. David wrote, 'the Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want....' In other words, he was indicating other people were wanting something that they couldn't find.

"You can walk down the streets of the average city of America and you see something in the eyes of young people today. They are looking for something and they don't know what it is. And that something, of course, is God. He was not talking just about physical want. He was talking about spiritual and moral want. I stood on the campus of Harvard University, about five or six years ago, and I was talking to the president and the dean. And I asked them, I said, 'what is the greatest problem that you face at Harvard'? And the dean answered. He said, 'our greatest problem is emptiness. Young people are empty'. The human heart craves meaning in life and yet we live in a time of spiritual emptiness that haunts millions.
"Secondly, David mentioned in that Twenty-third Psalm, the problem of guilt. David wrote, 'He restoreth my soul: He leads me in paths of righteousness....' Down inside, we all know that we have not measured up even to our own standards, let alone the standards of God. And I think about the fact that we can't even hang in our classrooms a copy of the Ten Commandments. We're throwing God out and bringing sex in and look what's happening. When we're guilty, down inside we all know that something is wrong.

"Thirdly, David pointed to the problem of death. He said, 'Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil'. I talked to a man, yesterday, that is one of the most powerful men in the Dominion of Canada. He had just found out that he has Alzheimer's. He called me on the phone and we hadn't seen each other in a long time. We used to know each other back in school. And he said, 'I just wanted to hear your voice. I wanted a word of comfort'. He said, 'I've become an agnostic'. His latest book is entitled Farewell to God.

"Death is the one common reality of all human life. I remember when I gave the funeral service for President Nixon in California and all the other Presidents were sitting there. Five. His casket was behind me. I pointed to the casket and I said to all of those former Presidents -- I said, 'some day you will be in a casket just like that'. And I said, 'it may not be long, because', I said, 'none of us knows when it'll be'.

"How many of us stop and really think about death and what's involved. And do we have hope beyond this life? It's the one thing that makes us all equal. We're all going to die. Yes, there are these three things emptiness, guilt and the fear of death that haunt our souls. We frantically seek to drown out their voices, driving ourselves into all sorts of activities, from sex to drugs. But, we must probe deeper. Why is the human heart this way? The reason is because we are alienated from our Creator. That was the answer David found to these three problems. He said, 'the Lord is my Shepherd.'

"This is why I believe the fundamental crisis of our times is a crisis of the spirit. And we're not addressing it in most places. We've lost sight of the moral and the spiritual principles on which this nation was established. Principles drawn largely from the Judeo-Christian tradition, as found in the Bible.

"What is the cure? Is there any hope? I've devoted my life to the deep conviction that there is hope and that hope lies in God. Yes, there's hope.
Our lives can be changed and our world can be changed. The Scripture says you must '...be born again...' (John 3:7) You could have a spiritual rebirth right here and now. When President Carter was elected President and he used that term 'born again', I guess I was asked that question a thousand times all over the world. What does he mean by that? And soon, we had born again automobiles, born again candy and born again no longer was applied to the human heart. It was applied to everything. But he was right, he was quoting Jesus. What must we do to be born again? There are three things, the Scripture says. First, we must repent of our sins.

"In the depths of the American Civil War, Abraham Lincoln called for special days of public repentance and prayer. When Confederate President Jefferson Davis, appointed August 21, 1863, as a day of fasting, humiliation, repentance and prayer, Robert E. Lee instructed his forces this, '...a strict observance of the days enjoined, all military duties will be suspended. Soldiers, we've sinned against Almighty God. We've forgotten His signal mercies and have cultivated a revengeful, haughty, and boastful spirit. God is our only refuge and our strength. Let us humble ourselves before Him. Let us confess our many sins....' So on both sides of that terrible conflict, there were men of leadership that believed in God and believed that we should turn to Him. Our need for repentance is no less today, in 1997.

"What does repentance mean? Repentance means that we're to change our way of thinking. We're to change the direction of our lives. It means to turn from our sins and to commit ourselves to God and His will. Twenty-seven hundred years ago, the Old Testament prophet Isaiah declared, 'seek the Lord while He may be found; call on Him while He is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the evil man his thoughts; let him turn to the Lord, and He will have mercy on him; and to our God, for He will freely pardon'. (Isaiah 55:6-7) These words are as true today as they were twenty-five hundred years ago.

"Secondly, we must commit our lives to God and to the moral and spiritual truths that have made this nation great and this state great. Think how different our nation and state would be if we sought to follow the simple and yet profound injunctions of the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount. But, we must respond to God, who is offering us forgiveness, mercy and supernatural health and power to change.

"Third, our commitment must be translated into actions -- in our homes, in our neighborhoods, and in our society. Jesus taught that there were only two roads of life. He said there's a broad road that's easy; it's well lighted. It's filled with all the night clubs and all the rest of it. And He said many are on that road. The majority are going that way. But He said, there is a narrow way and it leads by the way of the Cross. And He said if you go that way, you end up in solutions to your problems and in the end, Heaven. And, as we face a new millennium, I believe America has gone a long way down the wrong road. We must turn around and go back and change roads. If ever we needed God's help, it's now. If ever we needed spiritual renewal, it's now. And it can begin today in each one of our lives as we repent before God and yield ourselves to Him and His word.

"What are you going to do as an individual? The newspapers in a Southwestern state have carried the story of one young university student this past week. She's a senior in her university, getting ready to graduate, making straight A's. And so, in one of her final exams in literature, the teacher gave two books that they were to read before they could graduate and write a paper on each one. She started reading and it was filled with nothing but the vilest pornography that you could imagine. And she just sat down and said to the teacher, 'I won't read it'. The only person that stood with her was a black football player, the star of the football team. There they stood, just two in that class, willing to take a stand and say, 'we won't do it'. Well, of course, that made the newspapers. They went to the vice president of the school and he was appalled that a teacher would be offering that in that school and telling the students to read it. But her stand has made an impact on the whole state, from the Governor on down. I don't think we ought to dare to do less. And the reason I'm so proud of that little story is because that girl is my granddaughter. And, she's from Raleigh. Her mother and father are Dr. and Mrs. Lotz.

"The other day I heard the story of a high school principal who held an assembly for graduating seniors, inviting a recruiter from each branch of the service. You've probably heard it and told it. The Army, the Navy, the Air Force, and the Marines. To each were given twelve minutes to present their recruiting message to the student body. Each stressed the importance of each staying within the allotted time of three minutes. The Army representative went first, and he got so carried away with what he was saying that he spoke eighteen minutes. Not to be outdone the Navy said, 'we've got to do better'. So the Navy representative spoke nineteen minutes. And the Air Force thought, well, we can't be outdone either, so he spoke twenty minutes. That left only three minutes for the Marine. The Marine got up. He stood there and he didn't say a word. He just looked at all the people. He just looked them in the eye. And as his head went back and forth and he was looking at these people, he said, 'as I look around, I see only a few that are qualified to me to be an American Marine. And all of you that would like to be an American Marine, I'll meet you down front afterwards'. Do you know who had the most?

"That's what our young people are waiting for today, this evening, or this afternoon or whatever we are in. I look out across the distinguished group gathered here and I see more than a few men and women who have what it takes, under God, to lead our state and nation, with boldness and courage, forward through the night into the next millennium. To the highest ethical and moral standards as expressed in the Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount.

"Individuals who represent civic and governmental authority, as well as doctors, lawyers, clergy, artists, and media. Meantime, I want to pledge to you to be a loyal citizen of North Carolina, to continue to honor the state and to love the state. To do what I can as I get older and slow down my world travels and spend more time in North Carolina, to do what little bit I can to help you. And I pledge to continue the work that God has called me to do -- to preach the Gospel as long as I live, wherever I am.

"Thank you, and God bless you."

Upon completion of his address, Reverend Graham is presented with a plaque bearing the text of the Resolution honoring him as "World Evangelist" by Senator Basnight and Speaker Brubaker.

After the presentation, Reverend Graham leaves the Hall of the House, escorted by Senator Carpenter, Representative McCombs, and the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House and the Senate.

On motion of Senator Basnight, seconded by Speaker Brubaker, the Joint Session is dissolved and the Senate and the House of Representatives stand adjourned at 6:35 p.m.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, Associate Pastor, Highland United Methodist Church, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"Almighty God, in a world of change, in times when the decisions we face are becoming ever more complex, You placed eternity in our hearts and gave us the power to discern good from evil. Grant us sincerity as the leaders of this great State, so that we may persistently seek the things that endure, that we may deny ourselves those things which seek to bring only personal victory and success, and that we may refuse those things which lead to the destruction of others. Amid the things that are vanishing and deceptive, give us the spirit of discernment to see truth steadily and follow it faithfully. Guide us now in our legislation that we all might seek the greater good of Your people and that as those who have been entrusted by the people of North Carolina with a sacred trust might act and think and speak and vote according to that trust which has been given to us as a gift from You.

"In the name of Almighty God we pray. Amen."

Principal Clerk

On motion of Representative Morgan, seconded by Representative Owens, the House adjourns at 3:22 p.m. to reconvene May 8 at 12:30 p.m.

FIFTY-EIGHTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, May 8, 1997

The House meets at 12:30 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"Almighty God, by You... we who are meek, are guided in judgment; and from You true light rises up out of the darkness for the godly. You have promised strength for the weak, rest for the laborers, grace for the trials, unfailing sympathy, undying love, and light for the way. Remove from our hearts and minds: hatred, prejudice, and contempt for those who are not of our own race, color, class, creed, or party. Help us in our legislation to depart from everything that estranges and divides us so that truth and justice would reign supreme. Grant us few, who face making decisions on behalf of millions, grace in all of our doubts and uncertainties, to ask You what You would have us to do so that we may be saved from all false choices. Grant that in Your light we may see truth, and that following in Your path, we may not stumble. We pray this prayer as Your humble servants in the name of God. Amen."

SIXTIETH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, May 13, 1997

The House meets at 2:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Tom Watkins,
Associate Pastor, White Memorial Presbyterian Church, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"Merciful God,
Who sits in judgment,
    but Who has taken the sentence,
Who leads our world,
    but Who came to serve;
we beseech You this morning and ask Your blessing on those gathered here to serve this State.

"Grant a spirit of wisdom and understanding that they may serve faithfully.

"May those here who have power,
    be strength for those who are powerless.
May those here who have resources, serve those who have little.
May those here who have contacts and strings to pull,
pull for those who are disconnected.
May those here who have voice,
speak, at last, for the voiceless.
May those here who are respected and loved,
care for those who no one loves.

"And may we remember that You take no delight
in solemn assemblies, and that You will not accept token offerings of faithfulness, but that You demand that justice roll down like waters, and righteousness
like an ever-flowing stream.

"In the words of Woodrow Wilson:
Purify hearts to see and love truth;
give wisdom to these representatives and steadfastness to our people;
and bring us at last
to the fair city of peace,
whose foundations
are mercy, justice and goodwill,
and whose builder and maker You are.

"And in whose name we pray. Amen."

"Eternal and ever living God,
We pause to give You thanks for the many

"As custodians of Your vast and awesome creation, we are humbled by the power and authority that You have given us as Your children and people.

"We praise You for Your mercies,
for Your goodness that has created us;
Your grace that has sustained us;
Your discipline that has corrected us;
Your patience that has borne with us;
and Your love that has redeemed us.

"Help us to love You, and to be thankful for all of Your gifts and blessing, by serving You in all of life and delighting to do Your will.

"God of compassion, look upon us with loving kindness.
There are many differences between Your people.
Help each one of us to bridge those gaps and to be more open and understanding with those whom we disagree.

"Be with these faithful servants, who work diligently to lead our state and its people into the future.
Help them to open their eyes and be led by Your guidance.
Give them power and strength and stamina to be the leaders

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"O God, Creator of heaven and earth.

"We give You thanks for all of the hope that this day brings. We seek the awareness of Your Presence and Power as this day unfolds into its various activities and relationships. Our aim is to live as authentically as we can with You, with others, and with ourselves.

"We give You thanks for the opportunities today offers us; thanks for the persons with whom we are yoked; thanks for the vocation and location in which we are set; and thanks for the rich internal rewards that we receive as we honor others with our service.

"It is, indeed, our purpose, O God, to serve rather than to design structures, activities, and relationships which will bolster our own egos, pocketbooks, or status. We need Your forgiving and cleansing presence for our sin, as well as Your sustaining grace not to yield to the temptations of these vices of human nature. Grant that we may experience the freedom of Your Spirit among us as we seek to do good among Your people.

"We offer to You now, our thoughts, our energies, our words, and our actions, so that when this day closes, we may sleep in peace with the freedom of a good conscience and the satisfaction of having lived as authentically as we could have lived within Your will. Amen."

SIXTY-SIXTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, May 22, 1997

The House meets at 1:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, Raleigh, North Carolina.
"Eternal God, everything that we have at our fingertips and at our disposal comes from You. Nothing in our lives that we consider blessed can come from any other source, for You alone are the source of divine Love. Forgive us when we take these gifts for granted and exploit them and spend them as if they were ours to do with what we wish. These seats which we occupy are a sacred gift that have been entrusted to us by others and with them comes authority...and with authority comes responsibility. Lord, remind us of our oaths of responsibility: to You; to our families; to our friends; to our neighbors; to our colleagues; and to those who have elected us to serve on their behalf. Grant us the vision to see; the ears to hear; and the wisdom to speak and act with courage and conviction. In the name of Almighty God, we pray. Amen."

SIXTY-SEVENTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Monday, May 26, 1997

The House meets at 7:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, Raleigh, North Carolina.

A moment of silence is observed in memory of Mr. Charles Parrish, who served as a Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms and passed away Saturday, May 24, 1997.

"Eternal God, Creator and Preserver of all life, Author of salvation, Giver of all grace: we give You thanks for the past weekend's rest and the opportunity we had to be with those we love and hold dear. As we prepare for another week of work in a free society, we pause for a moment of silence on this Memorial Day, as we give thanks for the lives of those who have helped to make and to keep this nation free.
'Tonight, we gather together for another week in this place to continue our efforts carrying out our part in the administration of this State. Remind us of our responsibility to be sensitive to the needs of others. Grant us the clarity of Your vision to see clearly, the difference between right and wrong and give us the conviction to make our decisions based on the greater of these two. Bless and sanctify us in the many respective jobs that we do. May our work be recognized as our efforts to better our lives while on earth, and may we always be mindful of the sacred responsibility we have for the lives that have been entrusted into our care. Amen.'

The Speaker leads the Body in the Pledge of Allegiance.

REMARKS BY U.S. SENATOR JESSE A. HELMS

"Mr. President, President Pro-Tem Basnight, Speaker Brubaker, Governor Hunt, Council of State Members, Chief Judge Arnold, Members of the Governors Cabinet, Members of the Senate and House of Representatives, guests and friends.

"I am deeply touched and profoundly honored by your invitation to come this morning for this joint session of the General Assembly of North Carolina--the greatest State of the Union.

"One of the papers speculated the other day that I am the first sitting Senator to be accorded this honor. If so, I wish my parents were still around--my father would be fascinated by your having me here. My mother would have thought I deserved it."
"The distinguished U. S. Senator from West Virginia, Mr. Robert C. Byrd—who was born in North Carolina, by the way—is the U. S. Senate's walking encyclopedia on the history of what we extravagantly call 'the world's greatest deliberative body'.

"I was astounded some years ago when I read in a Senate history book how very few United States Senators there have been. I asked Senator Byrd if that could be true; he said it was. So I began then to keep track of little things myself, and you may be surprised that, including all of the new Senators elected last November, there have been only 18 hundred 46 Senators in the more than 200 years since the first U.S. Senate convened.

"I am the 1,675th to serve in the Senate—and the 45th from North Carolina. My able and distinguished colleague, Senator Faircloth is No. 50 from North Carolina.

"I have had the privilege of serving with six North Carolina colleagues, Senator Ervin being the first.

"I was so honored to be Senator Sam's junior colleague for the two final years before his retirement in 1975.

"What a great man he was, and how I shall forever be grateful for his time in helping me understand the absolute necessity of my being on guard when the constitutional rights of the American people are at risk—which they are so very often.

"Senator Ervin held in disdain what he called 'those ignorant negotiators who are always so willing to surrender the constitutional rights of the American people while agreeing to treaties that don't make sense'.

"He often shook his head and quoted Will Rogers who once declared that the United States had never lost a war nor won a treaty.

"Senator Sam complained that he doubted that any North Carolina newspaper editor had ever read a treaty before rushing into print with an endorsement of it. He quoted Lum Garrison, a beloved town character in Morganton as saying, 'Sam, pay no attention to them editors. They don't know nothin'—and they've got that all tangled up'.

"I never met Lum Garrison, but he was certainly right on target.
"One other bit of history about the Senate, and a sad chapter, it was. North Carolina set a record in the ten years between the late forties and the late 1950's. Our state was represented by ten Senators in ten years, beginning with the death of Senator Josiah Bailey who was succeeded by Senator Umstead (who later served as Governor). Senator Umstead was defeated by Senator Broughton, who died five months after taking office. Senator Frank Graham served about 2 years after being appointed. Senator Graham, was defeated by Senator Willis Smith, who died in office in 1953 and was succeeded by Senator Alton Lennon, who was defeated the next year by Senator Kerr Scott, who died early in office and was succeeded by Senator B. Everett Jordan who served until 1972 when he was defeated in the primary by Congressman Galifianakis who himself was defeated in the General Election of 1972. (I forget who succeeded Mr. Galifianakis.)

"While all of that was happening, the remarkable former North Carolina Governor and U. S. Senator Clyde R. Hoey died in 1954 after serving about 20 years. (He was succeeded by Senator Sam, who served exactly 20 years until 1974.)

"Your honoring me today reminds me of the story Ronald Reagan often told when he was being honored--a story about the leading citizen of a town in Texas--an elderly man who owned and controlled just about everything in town. On the 47th anniversary of the man's arrival, the town's Chamber of Commerce staged a big celebration, with dinner on the grounds, the high school's marching band and flags and decorations featuring pictures of the honored citizen.

"There were speeches of tribute to the gentleman, following which all eyes fastened on him, obviously expecting him to step up to the podium to respond, which he did.

"Nostalgically he recalled how he had walked into town on his 40th birthday, pointing to yon highway. 'That', he said wistfully, 'was just a dusty road then; there were only a few stores, a small hotel, a blacksmith, a stable for horses, and a saloon'.

"The old gentleman wiped tears from his eyes as he recalled: 'I came here', he said, 'with everything I owned tied up in a red bandanna tied on the end of a long stick on my shoulder'. He choked up as he described how the citizens of the community had welcomed him here and helped him begin all sorts of successful businesses which, as he put it, he started from scratch.
"Then he made his way back to his seat as a little boy, who had listened intently, slipped around the crowd, up on the grandstand to the old gentleman's side, and whispered, 'Sir, what did you have in that red bandanna?'

"The old gentleman motioned for the little boy to come close, then whispered: 'Five hundred thousand dollars in cash, and 600 thousand in negotiable securities.'

"I don't know about here but in the place where I work, there's a sort of artificial anticipation about the impending arrival of the 20th Century, a sort of unspoken presumption that things will automatically be better, problems will be solved, the federal budget will be balanced, and everybody will live happily ever after.

"None of the above is true--and, anyhow, I am not one who believes that the 20th Century should be discarded and forgotten.

"Why? Because we are concluding probably the most remarkable century in the history of mankind.

"So many wonderful things have happened since the 19th Century wound down. There would have been even more wonderful things if the politicians had not so often tossed aside the basic philosophies on which our Founding Fathers endowed this fledgling nation with moral and spiritual principles that deserved to survive. (It's important to remember that this nation was born after those Founding Fathers prayed to our Creator for guidance.)

"My dear friends, if you don't remember anything else I say here this morning, please remember this: Unless and until the American people demand the restoration of those moral and spiritual priorities, I simply do not believe that we're going to solve any other problems either.

"We live at a time when a vast percentage of Americans have been misled into believing that an all-powerful government can solve the problems of mankind. Big government cannot and will not solve the multitude of problems confronting our nation ... because big government is the problem.

"That's no platitude, that's no song-and-dance political rhetoric. The major problems confronting the American people began with small compromises by politically-ambitious souls who were focused on the next election instead of the next generation.
"Let me ask: Was not Thomas Jefferson clear and precise when he counseled that the least government is the best government? The other side of that coin is that a government big enough to give you everything you want is powerful enough to take everything you've got.

"Was FDR not correct when, while signing into law the Social Security Act in the 1930s, he warned that Social Security must never be converted into a political football?

"Was MacArthur not correct when he counseled that the United States must never involve itself in a ground war in Southeast Asia?

"Or, when Britain's prime minister, Neville Chamberlain, traveled to Munich to sit down and make a deal with Adolf Hitler? Mr. Chamberlain returned triumphantly to London proclaiming that there would be 'peace in our time'. The London newspapers praised Chamberlain for what they viewed as an extraordinary achievement of peace.

"But wait. There was one strong voice of dissent -- the voice of Winston Churchill who, when the Nazi bombs began to rain down on Britain, was called upon to lead his fellow countrymen into what proved to be Britain's finest hour in courageously standing together in fighting Hitler's tyranny.

"The 20th Century produced men and women of courage and wisdom and creativity far beyond previous times. Think of those few seconds in the air that enabled the Wright Brothers to lead us with that first brief step into the jet age; the astronauts on the moon and flying machines that already outdo anything Buck Rogers had in mind.

"Think of the advances in medicine. How many of us here this morning would not be here had it not been for the development and discovery of medical miracles and surgical procedures that are almost commonplace today.

"But this has also been the century of some tragic errors. Consider the enormity of the federal debt which stands at five trillion, 400 billion dollars.

"And there are countless other aspects that are of great concern about the kind of world our children and grandchildren will have.

"My first two years in the Senate, marked a great debate about slapping tough controls on U. S. oil producers. At that time, you should be reminded, that if you were willing to pump the gasoline into your car, the price was 28 to 30 cents a gallon. The U. S. was exporting oil to other countries at that time.

"So Congress slapped on the controls (I voted against them) and the U. S. oil producers couldn't make a profit--so down came their rigs all over the place, and the American people had to turn to foreign oil producers.

"And guess what! Today, about 58 percent of the gasoline used by Americans is refined from imported oil. (Last week, we imported about seven million barrels of oil, mostly from the Middle East!)

"And it is becoming increasingly worse. Before the Persian Gulf War, the United States obtained about 35 percent of its oil from foreign countries. Now its 58 percent and climbing.

"Now suppose Iran and Iraq somehow manage to take over the Middle East oil supply--does anyone doubt that the first thing Iran and Iraq will do is blackmail the United States with a cut-off of oil shipments to the United States? (Imagine what would happen if our oil supply were cut off!)

"Back in my television days, I had a feature called 'odds and ends from the miscellaneous file'. I promise I won't do much of that this morning, but there are a couple of odds and ends that you may want to think about.

"You recall, I hope, my long time fight to cut the wasteful cost of operating our foreign policy apparatus. (What do you know, Al Gore and Madeleine Albright now agree with me!)

"Anyhow, there are three duplicative, hopelessly wasteful agencies, created as 'temporary' federal agencies back in the 1950s. Every year, these three agencies have grown like topsy in cost (and arrogance) and have become fiefdoms for the entrenched bureaucrats who head them.

"Remember, now--they were advertised as purely 'temporary' federal agencies when they were created about 40 years ago. (It's like Ron Reagan used to say: 'There's nothing so near eternal life as a temporary federal agency'.)

"One of the three agencies which I intend to abolish as one of those 'independent fiefdoms' is the Agency for International Development--the foreign aid give-away agency which has cost the American taxpayers two trillion dollars in taxes. (When you factor in the fact that all of these give-away funds have been money borrowed by the federal government. You see the enormous cost of compounded interest rolled-over, year after year.

"To illustrate how arrogant these bureaucrats can be, in the face of the obvious fact that even Bill Clinton has finally made clear that he intends to support my downsizing the State Department and the 'independent agencies'--the foreign aid give-away crowd (the AID) has agreed to a lease for 605,000 square feet of office space in the newest and most expensive office building in Washington. The taxpayers will have to foot the bill for an average of $43.84 per square foot--or $26 million 554 thousand dollars a year to pay the rent for this 'temporary' agency, which has already spent $30,645,166 for furniture, telephones, etc.

"I have run too long and I must conclude. But before I do (and as I do) ladies and gentlemen, leaders of North Carolina and your guests, I came not here to convert this distinguished podium into a pretentious holier-than-thou lecture. Perhaps I should apologize for my having alluded to my personal convictions about the destiny of America.

"But, like you, I have sought for, fought for, and voted for, ways to do the best I can to restore the soul of America. You are great North Carolinians and great Americans because you love this State and because you love America.

"It is frustrating--isn't it?--to try to turn things around--to restore moral and spiritual principles that made our country great in the first place, and to realize that our efforts are not working.

"I find myself contemplating, and perhaps you do, too, that great French statesman, economist, diplomat and author, Alexis deToqueville, who in the middle of the 19th Century became increasingly fascinated with that then fledgling nation across the Atlantic, called America.

"How, he asked himself, did this America so quickly grow into the status of a world leader?

"How did this meteoric rise to world leadership come about?

"Such questions led deToqueville to make several trips to America in the mid-19th Century to discover the genius of this remarkable land. When he came, he visited the cities and the villages, the factories and the farmlands, the fishermen, tradesmen, the miners, the few colleges and universities.
"Everywhere he looked he saw nothing remarkably different from his home country.

"That is, he said later, he didn't see it until he went into the churches of America, and saw the men, women and children on their knees in prayer, asking for forgiveness, praying for direction by their God, praying in repentance for their sins.

"There, deToqueville said, is where I found the genius of America--people wanting and trying to be good and God-fearing.

"So, deToqueville wrote:

"'For so long as America is a good nation, America will continue to be a great nation'.

"But, Alexis deToqueville warned, when America ceases to be good, America will cease to be great.

"We can never say that we weren't given fair warning. Thank you, my dear friends.

"God bless you--and God Bless America."

Upon completion of his address, Senator Helms is escorted from the House Chamber.

SIXTY-NINTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, May 28, 1997

The House meets at 2:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"God of Mercy, this midday moment of silence is a welcome gift. Many of us have been busy running from meeting to meeting dodging the bullets of time, energy, fatigue, and the roller coaster of emotions. Solitude is one of those gifts that we never can seem to find, and when we do, we tend to find excuses to ignore our need for quietness and respite. Let us find true peace, if only in this moment, to quiet our weary souls. Bless the work that we have begun this day, make good their defects, and let us finish our work and our day in a way that is pleasing to You. Grant us Your mercy, we humbly pray. Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of May 27 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by

HOUSE JOURNAL

[Session

SEVENTIETH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, May 29, 1997

The House meets at 1:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"God of Grace, the lives that You give us to live are so very fragile. We like to think that we are invincible and beyond destruction, but these earthly tents of ours often break down. Our spiritual lives are like that, too. We live day to day, forgetting to tend to the real 'stuff' that we are made of, until tragedy happens and only then does reality hit us with what is really important in life. As we sit here, day in and day out, passing bills and resolutions and making laws, help us to remember the fragility of life. Help us to remember the faces and the hands that we shook when You called us to become servants of Your people. We remember, this afternoon, our brothers and sisters in Texas who were devastated by the tornados. As victims of Hurricane Fran, we can empathize and we can pray for recovery for those people. In all of our thoughts and prayers, help us to pray for the recovery of the real 'stuff' that makes life special, the real priorities of life, so that everything false will pass away, and that true peace might be found.

"All this we humbly pray in the name of Almighty God. Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of May 28 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by electronic vote (86-0).

Leaves of absence are granted Representatives Creech and Cunningham for today.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"Eternal God, in whose appointment our life stands, and who committed our work to us, we begin our work week together by committing our cares to You. We thank You that we are Your children, and that You have assured us that, while we are intent upon Your will, You will heed our wants. Teach us, O God of every nation and state, to see every question of policy that is before us in the light of our faith, and not in the light of our own search for power. Teach us to check deeply within ourselves, every passion that makes for anger or bitterness between us, all ungenerous judgments, all promptings of self-assurance, and all presumptuous claims. Grant us insight to recognize the needs and aspirations of others whom You have placed in our care, and remove our suspicions and misunderstandings, so that we may honor all people in this state, in this nation, in this world, and above all, that we may honor You. Amen."

---

SEVENTY-SECOND DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Tuesday, June 3, 1997

The House meets at 2:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"Before we pray, I would like to say that coming with this appointment as your Chaplain, an appointment for which I am very proud and grateful, has come perhaps, a keener awareness of public policy and a deeper awareness of your public responsibility. I liken that responsibility to that of my own having been entrusted by my Bishop with the care of a local congregation. As I have reflected on the awesomeness of these words: trust and responsibility, and in light of the 'Oklahoma City Bombing Verdict', in light of the magnifying glass that has been placed over many different administrations over the years, in light of every public trust that has been given to an elected and appointed official, I am reminded of the phrase, 'the eyes of the world are upon us'. As we head toward the long hours of committee meetings and caucuses and into the budget proceedings and debate, perhaps the eyes of the world aren't upon us. But, each one of us are keenly aware of the fact that the eyes of this State are, indeed, upon us. My prayer for this General Assembly is that with this reflection in the forefront of our minds, and hopefully in our hearts, we would never take for granted the gifts of leadership given to each one of us...Let us pray.

"O God of heaven and earth, You alone are sovereign, and You alone are the supreme ruler of our life. Yet, in Your mercy, You have agreed to share those sacred responsibilities of human government with us. As You rule over us, often times You make decisions that we would rather You had not made, but You knew that Your decision was the best decision for us at that particular time. We who gather here in this legislative building and hold these seats of public trust risk putting everything on the line with our votes and our responses to the needs of Your people. As we attempt to act and legislate in this same manner on behalf of others, we pray for vision...we pray for the conviction of principle...and we would pray for the courage of living that conviction. Have mercy on us and grant that we may live our lives according to the mercy having been granted to us by You, Almighty God. Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of June 2 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by electronic vote (107-1).

Leaves of absence are granted Representatives Creech, Shubert, and Wood for today. Representative C. Wilson is excused for a portion of the session.

SEVENTY-FOURTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 5, 1997

The House meets at 10:00 a.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"God of the wilderness, from the beginning of time, You have proven to be a God who walks with us through the wildernesses of life. What scripture tells us is that when Your people keep their eyes focused upon You, You never let them go astray. Scripture also reminds us that when people choose to glance away from You and look to their own agendas, they often find themselves wandering like the Israelites of old wandered aimlessly in the desert.

"For all of us here, O God, agreeing upon and voting on this budget is a lot like walking through the wilderness. All of us have our own definitions of what is necessary and what is a priority. But, You alone are truth. And, You alone know the way we should move to reach the promised land. And, so we have two choices. We can choose to follow the convictions of our hearts which seek to honor You, or we can choose to impose our own agendas and find ourselves lost among the wilderness of self-indulgence, greed, political posturing, and ultimately...spiritual isolation. Guard our hearts! And, through the truth of Your Holy Spirit, lead us to the promised land, through Jesus Christ our Lord, Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of June 4 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by electronic vote (103-2).

May the golden words of the Gospel which say, 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you', not be just words on a page, but the attitude and action of our hearts and minds.

"Come with power, O Lord, upon these our leaders this day. And 'let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream'. In the Name of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Savior, I pray. Amen."

SEVENTY-SEVENTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, June 11, 1997
The House meets at 1:00 p.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Al Margaret, Associate Pastor, Trinity Baptist Church, Raleigh, North Carolina.

"Almighty God, Sovereign Lord, we bow before Thee with humble adoration and praise. We acknowledge Your presence and Your preeminence as our Creator and Sustainer.

"Lord, as the Psalmist declared, 'You have been our dwelling place throughout all generations. Before the mountains were born or You brought forth the earth and the world, from everlasting to everlasting You are God'. (Psalm 90:1-2)

"We pray for these who have assembled here today, as they work together to build upon the spiritual foundations and principles of democracy, justice and liberty which guided previous generations and that have shaped this Nation and State.

"Help us to recognize the truths that the writer of the 128th Psalm expressed when he wrote:

'Unless the Lord builds the house, its' builders labor in vain. Unless the Lord watches over the city, the watchmen stand guard in vain. In vain you rise early and stay up late, toiling for food to eat--for he grants sleep to those he loves. Sons are a heritage from the Lord, children a reward from him. Like arrows in the hands of a warrior are sons born in one's youth. Blessed is the man whose quiver is full of them. They will not be put to shame when they contend with their enemies in the gate'.

"We pray that You will guide their work this day. Give them wisdom, insight and discernment. Give them understanding and patience. Give them compassionate hearts as they consider the needs of the people of this great State. Give them courage and strength as they defend our cities and communities from such enemies as:

- Homelessness & Lawlessness
- Disease & Discord
- Hatred & Violence
- Intolerance & Indifference
- Hunger & Greed

And the one that is sometimes the hardest to conquer, Selfishness.
"And now, 'May the Lord bless you and keep you: The Lord make His face to shine upon you, and be gracious to you: The Lord lift up His countenance upon you, and give you peace'. (Numbers 6:24-26) Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of June 10 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by electronic vote (95-1).

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"O Lord our God, many are the nights and days when we ponder Your ways. Many are the times when we consider the works of Your hands. How did You do it all? We search for these answers, and many more, through a myriad of scientific disciplines, and yet, like in the time of the Tower of Babel, we still cannot find You. How, then, O God, are we to agree on matters such as those that are before us? How, then, O God, can we expect to build a community free from prejudice, and hatred, and oppression? How, then, O God, can we dare to believe that there is a better day ahead? What do You say? Keep daring? Keep believing? Keep fighting against the status quo? Open our eyes that we might see, glimpses of truth Thou hast for us, and knit within our hearts the fabric of a society that can endure the woes of itself and in turning our eyes toward heaven, catch a glimpse of a reality that one day shall set us all free. Amen."

On motion of Representative Morgan, seconded by Representative Earle, the House adjourns at 12:25 p.m. to reconvene June 26 at 10:00 a.m.

EIGHTY-SIXTH DAY

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, June 26, 1997

The House meets at 10:00 a.m. pursuant to adjournment and is called to order by the Speaker.

The following prayer is offered by the Reverend Jim Harry, House Chaplain.

"Almighty God, the hours have become long and the days even longer. Our strategies and our patience run thin. We turn to You now in this hour of need. We turn to You and search for the missing links. What is it that will bear forth fruit in our time of waiting? From where will come the spirit of compromise that we need to settle our differences? The Psalmist asked these questions, 'I cast my eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help?' And in Your mercy, You answered, 'Your help comes from the Lord, maker of heaven and earth'. And, so, O God of heaven and earth, as we turn our eyes to the hills, we will wait for Your help, for we know that in You and in You alone, help is here! Grant that in our comings and goings, none of us fail to know that You are already here and working in our midst. Amen."

Representative Morgan, for the Committee on Rules, Calendar, and Operations of the House, reports the Journal of June 25 has been examined and found correct. Upon his motion, the Journal is approved as written by electronic vote (100-3).
